Convicts Are Freed After Heroic Deed

By Associated Press
Miami, Fla.—Heroism displayed by them when D. Brooke, county prison warden, was killed by a premature explosion of dynamite last Friday, has resulted in the release of three convicts from prison here. They were John Kelly, Charles Overman and Harry Wolfson, who, although injured themselves by the blast, placed the dying official in an automobile and drove to a hospital. Kelly attempted to reach Brooke and Isadore Pommerance, a convict who was fatally injured in the blast, was still in the hospital. The three convicts were freed after a heroic deed.

NEW OFFICERS OF LEGION POST TAKE OVER YEAR'S WORK

State Legion Officials Commend Appleton Veterans for Their Activities

More than 500 legionnaires attended the fall trolle of Oney Johnston post of the American Legion Monday evening in Elk hall and witnessed the installation of officers by George R. Howitt of Pewaukee, first vice commander of Wisconsin department of the legion. The program included talks by a number of state officers and a group of orchestra, song and dance selections.

Officials of the state department of the legion were guests of the post, including Mr. Howitt, Austin Peterson of Milwaukee, assistant, E. V. Elgsey, Marinette, Ninth district committee-man, Dr. L. W. Carey of Reedsville, former state vice commander, and W. H. Johnson of Kiel. Sixth district committee-man, Judge Edgar V. Werner also was among the guests and speakers.

Delegations from ten legion posts in neighboring cities were present at the meeting and were introduced. New London brought its bugle and drum corps and marched into the hall with its martial music. Other posts represented were Dale, Hortonville, Kimberly, Little Chute, Kaukauna, Deerborn, Neenah, Menasha and Seymour.

OFFICERS TAKE PLEDGE
J. N. Fisher retiring commander, occupied the hour until after the installation. Mr. Howitt acting as installing officer gave a brief address after which he gave the charge to the new staff and accepted the pledges of allegiance. The new officers are: Commander, Thomas Morrissey; first vice commander, Ray Peterson; second vice commander, George C. Dame, third vice commander, Harvey Prieb; finance officer, Clark Goodland; assistant finance officer, August Arens; adjutant, Joseph Witmer; chaplain, Prof. R. A. Hannum; historian, Erik L. Madison; service officer, A. C. Bossier; sergeant-at-arms, Thomas O'Neill. H. J. Pettigrew is chairman of the executive committee.

State officials were invited to the legion by L. Hugo Keller of this city, commander of the state department. Each man gave an address in which he urged loyalty to the legion. The coming membership campaign was mentioned and the various posts urged to undertake community work. All legionnaires were told to vote Tuesday as an act of good citizenship. High compliments were given Oney Johnston post for the extent of its activity and its leadership in the state.

SEEK LEADERS
Judge Werner addressed the veterans, denouncing a plan for a contest among schools to choose the young people of greatest leadership and having these people come to a training camp each summer to prepare for community service. He has a camp project he promised to announce later and wants the young people entertained free in recognition of their work.

Thomas H. Morrissey, new commander, made known some of his plans which include intensive welfare work in each ward, more efficiency in post activities and a greater membership as the result of this year's campaign. He told of a plan to have the legion remember the gold star mothers on Mothers day each year. The veterans were urged to attend the pageant planned for Armistice day by the legion at Lawrence Memorial chapel under direction of Dr. Earl L. Baker.

An excellent entertainment program concluded the meeting. Selections were given by a quartet consisting of Mrs. Winifred Wilson Quinlan, Mrs. Oscar Adler, George Nixon and Carl McKee. The entertainers of Terrace Gardens consisting of Ives Piccola 8-piece orchestra and a singer and dancer also appeared in a group of selections.

Visiting legion officials were entertained at dinner at Conway hotel previous to the meeting by members of the executive committee.

FOREMEN'S CLASS STARTS WITH 17

Seventeen representatives of Appleton, Neenah Menasha and Kimberly industries were present at the organization meeting of the Industrial Forum at the Y. M. C. A. Monday evening. The meeting opened with a supper at 6:15 after which business was carried on with A. W. Agrell, president, in charge.

It was decided to carry on the forum with the same general plan as in former years. Subjects to be used the way they should be handled and prospective speakers were discussed. Secretary C. L. Boynton was instructed to secure a speaker for the next meeting to be held Wednesday, Nov. 13.

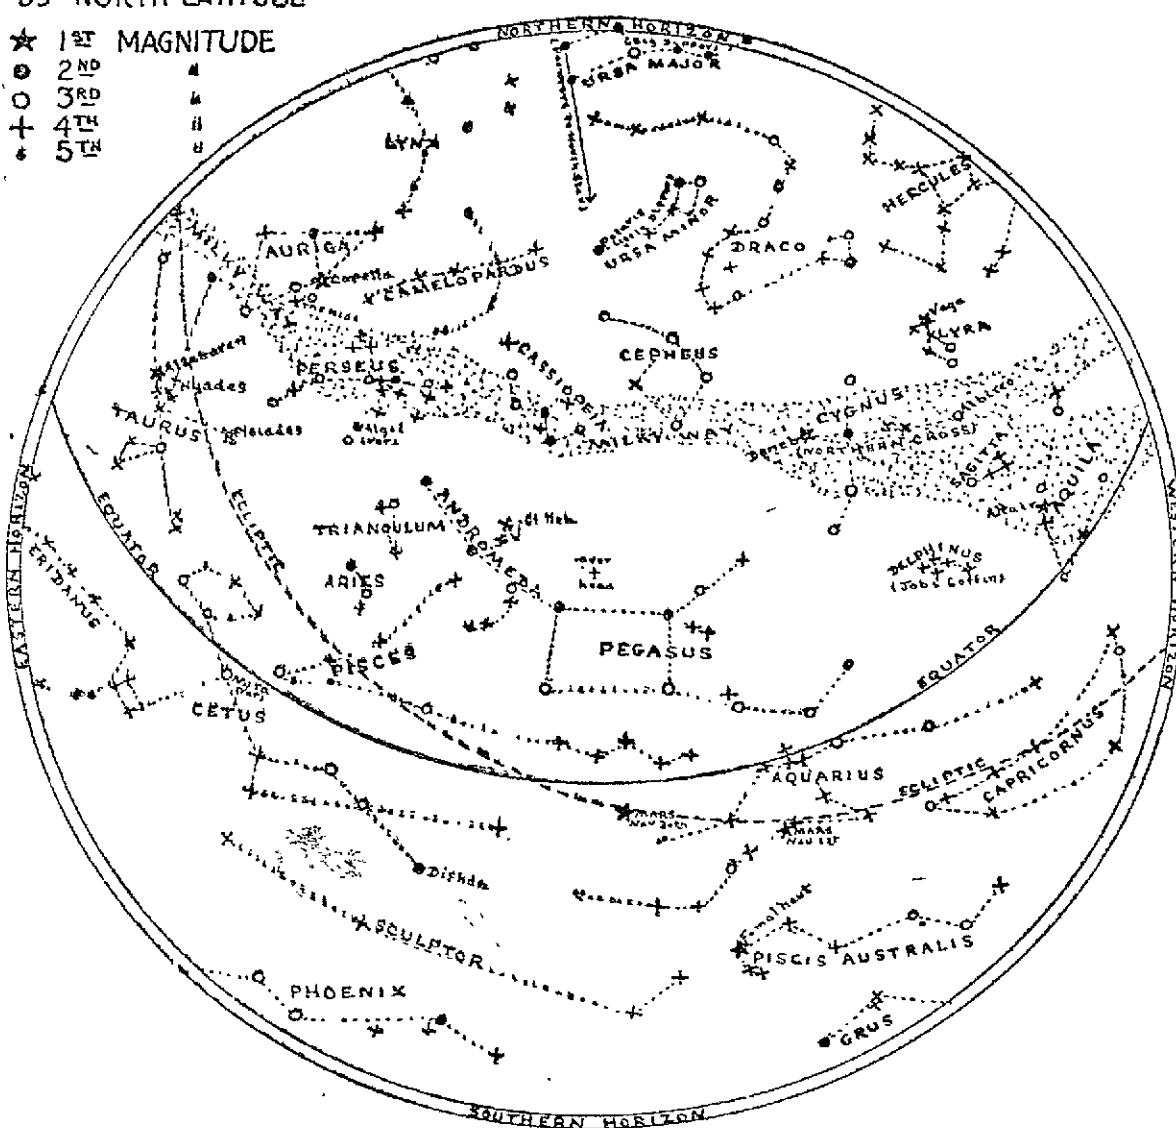

A program committee was appointed, consisting of Charles H. Kelly of Thilmany Tissue Co. and A. S. MacArthur and William Melching of Kimberly Clark Co. A committee of the entire group was appointed to take care of membership and the work in the mills not represented at the meeting.

Those present were: A. S. MacArthur, William Melching and G. H. Spaulding of Kimberly-Clark Co.; Bert Post and H. A. Sandberg, Appleton Woolen mills, William Prager and James Ogilvie, Telulah Paper Co.; A. W. Agrell and Peter Jones, Patten Paper Co.; Earl M. McCourt and Theodore N. Frank, Interlance Pulp and Paper Co.; R. J. Noel and Edward Shumaker, Tuttle Press Co. and C. H. Kelly of Thilmany Tissue Co.

The most interesting group of stars visible during the evening hours this month are Cassiopeia in the north, with its characteristic W-shaped group of stars, the Northern Cross in Cygnus, high in the west, directly in the path of the Milky Way, the Great Square in Pegasus, nearly due south of the zenith with Andromeda adjacent on the east, and, in the eastern sky, the constellations of Taurus and Auriga.

Taurus contains two interesting and far-famed groups of stars, the cluster of the Pleiades and the V-shaped group of the Hyades which contains the fiery red first magnitude star Aldebaran. Close to the brilliant yellow star, Capella, in Auriga is a small group of three stars known as Haedi, or The Kids. The Great Spiral Nebula in Andromeda is faintly visible to the naked eye and will be found in the position indicated on the chart.

The planet Mars is now visible in the southwest and is the only one of the brighter planets above the horizon at the time for which the chart is given. Many interesting objects in addition to those mentioned above can be identified with the aid of the chart.

Easier To Pay
$10 Fine Than
Sleep In Jail

Joseph Kiefer of Freedom left the courthouse with the satisfaction of having scorned the welcome of the county jail. A few moments before he had spurned a proposition of Judge A. M. Spencer to pay a $10 fine. The forbidding bars of the gloomy cell that awaited him tended to change his mind. He paid the fine.

Kiefer had been arrested for tampering with the air valves of the tires of an automobile at a wedding charivari recently. The defendant declared his innocence, but witnesses testified against him. When found guilty by the court, he could not see the wisdom of paying the fine until convinced by the bars of his cell.

OPEN CONFERENCE OF STATE YOUTHS FRIDAY AFTERNOON

Problems of Young Peoples
Work Will Be Discussed
With Delegates

Sessions of the state young peoples conference will open at 1:45 Friday afternoon at the First Congregational church, with approximately 750 boys and girls in attendance, according to the complete program just issued by J. L. Rogers of Oshkosh, conference director and secretary of Wisconsin Christian Education council.

Meetings will be held each morning, afternoon and evening on Saturday and Sunday, using the Congregational church up to Saturday night. Lawrence Memorial chapel will be used that evening and all day Sunday.

NEED MORE HOMES
Delegates will be entertained in homes of the various Appleton churches which are cooperating. The hosts are asked to furnish breakfast each morning and dinner on Sunday. Other meals are to be purchased by the young people at hotels or restaurants. There still is a need of homes, and families willing to take either boys or girls are asked to notify Miss Marie Finger, telephone 1892-W, or Mrs. H. K. Pratt, telephone 165-R.

Emlyn Owen of Neenah, conference president, will be chairman of the opening session. Singing will be led by the Rev. M. G. VanBuskirk of Oneida, Ill., prominent young people's worker. The worship period is in charge of the young people's department of the Presbyterian church, Neenah.

Prof. M. A. Honline of Pasadena, Calif., religious education specialist, is to speak at 2:45 Friday afternoon on "A Borrower of the Ages. Discussion" will follow.

CONSIDER LIFE RELATIONS
Everyday life relations will be considered in talks at 3:30. The Home will be the principal topic. Mrs. Annette Abernethy Lamoreaux, author and lecturer, will speak on the young women's side of this topic. With Alice Shepard presiding. The Rev. R. A. Waite, Evanston, associated director of the American Youth Foundation, will take up the boys' side, with Charles Keller presiding.

Conferences for workers will be held at 4:55, the last afternoon session. Miss Edith M. Weber of Oshkosh, and Mrs. I. M. Weber, Milwaukee, Sunday school specialists, will take up the topic of Workers with Young Children. The Rev. Mr. Waite will discuss the Organized Class, the Rev. Mr. VanBuskirk, the Organized department, and the Rev. C. C. Browne, Baptist education director, Sunday School Officers.

After the sessions of the conference will be taken up with conferences, addresses and a program of stunts.

GREEN DIVISION WINS SAFETY TITLE

Accidents Are Cut to Minimum as Result of Great Papermill Contest.

One of the most vigorous safety contests ever conducted by Kimberly-Clark Co. at its papermill at Kimberly ended last week with the green division as the winner. Decision as to the winner was made at a meeting of the contest board Saturday.

Two out of three great contests in which accidents were cut to a negligible total were won by the green division as against the yellows. All employees of the mill were enlisted in the non-accident race and assigned to either one side or the other.

Green division had 5,088 points to the credit and the yellows 5,038. The fact that the former won a previous contest gave the mill championship to the greens.

Mass meetings were held almost every week to stimulate interest in safety at the papermill and every department was on the alert to prevent accidents.

Latin Legal Terms, Like A Dog's Bark, Are Not As Terrible As They Sound

Should Mr. Pickwick step out of one of those quaint British courts described by Dickens and attend a session in an Appleton court, he might not be quite so mystified by the language of the attorneys as he was on the day that he was sued for breach of promise by his housekeeper.

Not that attorneys have as yet fully mastered the art of making themselves understood by the lay mind, for that might be too great a concession. Clients still gasp at the formidable terminology with which members of the profession teach an outsider his proper place. Yet those inhibitory barriers are being lowered by a relaxation in the use of Latin maxims and Latin labels for court machinery.

Let medical men expostulate on the gravity of "erythema nodosum"—and still look serious. Let the ancients go into ecstasies in disputes over the truth or fallacy of the theory of "Rex non potest peccare." (The king can do no wrong)—a prerogative sometimes arrogated by governors. But let a young blood of an attorney fresh from law school tender a "Salus populi superior lex," (The public welfare is the highest law) and his elder brethren will know the exact remedy for that kind of complaint.

SOUNDS TERRIBLE
Since the day when "jus Romanum" and "jus civile" and all the other "Juces" held sway, Latin terms and maxims have waned a trifle in popularity. That's why a man is startled when he is about to be separated "a vinculo matrimonii" or "a mensa et thoro," instead of from the bonds of matrimony or from board and lodging,—and hopes the operation will not be a serious one.

Legal terminology, attorneys point out, was as susceptible to the Latin influence as medicine, pharmacutics and botany. How could it escape it, when the whole complexion of the English language has been altered by Roman culture? When Julius Caesar, with his Roman legions, set foot on British soil, he laid the foundation of Roman jurisprudence. In succeeding centuries Roman law exerted a still greater influence through the medium of the church which was permeated with Roman ideas and culture. American court procedure is based upon the British common law, and the Latin legal terms which are region but not commonly used, are a part of the heritage.

ISN'T QUITE DEAD
They say that Latin is a dead language, but although it may be in its last throes in the court chambers, the end is not yet. It still remains for some illegal seizure, false arrest, or discontinuance of a case to bring these foreign legal maxims to light. Immediately a lot of well meaning folk begin to wonder what kind of corpse the sheriff is holding in "habeas corpus" proceedings, or why the district attorney declined to play trumps when he entered a writ of "nolle prosequi."

Although the lawbooks are full of more expressions than peace-loving people desire to be acquainted with, there are only few Latin terms that crop out in any degree or frequency. Among those most commonly used are mandamus, habeas corpus, nolle contendere, nolle prosequi, and certiorari. A writ of mandamus is a stepdaughter of the mandates issued by the English crown through the high courts directing a public official to some public duty. When a city official in a nearby community refused to call a city election petitioned for, the citizens asked the municipal court here for a writ of mandamus compelling that official to discharge his duty. The term is couched in sharp language. "We command," and many an official withholding public information or shirking public duty has cringed under that court order.

The order bears some similarity to an injunction, another commanding act, which is often directed against parties other than public officials. It may be either prohibitive or mandatory, either temporary or permanent. Most often it restrains a person or corporation from continuing in some undertaking, as in the case of an Outagamie school teacher who was temporarily prohibited from teaching when another teacher claimed the contract for the same school, and also in the case of labor disputes and strikes.

BRING 'EM INTO COURT
Some time ago a local court official issued a writ of "habeas corpus" against an officer directing him to give up a person whom he was believed to be holding in custody without a warrant. The writ, literally meaning "You hold the body, or person," orders an officer to bring into court prisoners who believe themselves to be illegally imprisoned. The writ may also be used to bring inmates of insane asylums and hospitals into court for an examination.

The order is akin to the writ of "cepias" (You may take), a court process commanding an officer to arrest some one.

A writ of "certiorari" (to be made certain in regard to) represents a recourse for some person who believes he has not received justice from some lower court. The writ directs a lower court to deliver up records pertaining to a certain case. It is also used against boards of review and legislative bodies.

CONSCIENCE SALVE
When a prisoner wishes to take a dignified way of evading the opprobrium of criminal conviction, he enters a plea of "nolo contendere." (I will not contest.) He pleads neither not guilty nor guilty, but subjects himself to the jurisdiction of the court and accepts the sentence as if he stood convicted. This does not preclude him from denying the charges against him.

Somewhat different is the writ of "nolle prosequi" (to be unwilling to prosecute) which the district attorney may file when he believes that evidence against the person arrested is not sufficient to convict him. He cannot drop the case merely on the strength of sympathy with the defendant.

"Caveat emptor." (Let the buyer beware) sometimes used in court, is not a court process but merely a principle of law which implies that the purchaser buys at his own risk. A "replevin" (to have again), not strictly a Latin term, is an action to secure possession of property illegally taken away by another party. A "demurrer" (an act to delay proceedings) also not pure Latin, is a pleading alleging the insufficiency of or a defect in the complaint made against a party in a civil suit, on the face of which it is asked that the complaining party be not allowed to proceed further.

COMET IS RACING SUN
According to observers at Harvard University, the new comet of the seventh magnitude discovered by the astronomer Finster at Bonn, Germany, is blazing across the sky just two hours behind the sun. As comets go, the new comet is a big one and is getting brighter all the time.

Stop That Backache!

Is a bad back keeping you upset and miserable? Do you suffer sharp, stabbing pains? Feel so weak, tired and nervous you can seldom enjoy a moment's rest or comfort? Do you wonder what is wrong?

Many times this condition is due to sluggish kidneys that are failing to properly filter body poisons from the blood. The whole system feels the injurious effects of these impurities. Then comes constant backache, rheumatic twinges, headaches, dizziness and annoying bladder irregularities.

Don't wait! Use Doan's Pills. Doan's have helped thousands. They should help you. Ask your neighbor!

Here is Appleton Proof:

A. A. Doepker, 1177 DeForest Ave., says: "A sharp, cutting pain cut into my back and I could hardly get about. My back became very sore. My kidneys acted too freely and sometimes the secretions were highly colored. Members of my family recommended Doan's Pills, so I bought a box. Two boxes of Doan's cured me."

Capt. Shaw Expresses Appreciation of Results of Campaign Here

Appleton did the best this year of any campaign conducted by the Salvation Army advisory board to obtain funds for the local work and institutional activities. The total amount realized was $3,632.81, according to announcement of William G. Commentz, chairman of the board.

Cash gifts totaled $3,405.81 and pledges were $227, according to the reports made to M. A. Schuh, treasurer. The goal set for Appleton was $4,000 and it is possible that the shortage may be made up in part from later gifts.

Capt. Edward Shaw, in charge of the local Salvation Army corps, declares that his organization is gratified at the showing made here. It is the first time Appleton has come near expectations in a campaign and this is due largely to the number of people who volunteered to do the soliciting. Capt. Shaw desires to thank the public for the gifts.

THE MERCHANT MARINE

According to Leigh C. Palmer, former rear admiral, now president of Emergency Fleet corporation, the American merchant marine will continue in existence indefinitely. He is visiting the principal inland cities, urging manufacturers and merchants to give ships flying the flag the preference with import and export shipments. "The shipping board," he says, "at the present is operating 400 cargo ships over established routes to every important port in the world. We are soliciting traffic on a purely business basis, showing the shipper that he can get better service at lower rates by patronizing the American ships."

There is a wide difference of opinion about how the United States is to maintain a merchant marine. We think everyone will agree that it is desirable the country should have and should navigate its own ships and that the extent to which it does this will largely determine the expansion of its commerce and the maintenance of its place in international trade. In the last fifty years we have not been able to agree upon a national policy. Numerous proposals for subsidies have been voted down. The war left us with a merchant marine hastily built to provide for the emergencies of that period. In many respects it is an elephant on our hands, for the simple reason that it is compelled to operate at a great disadvantage in competition with the shipping of other nations.

The principle of a subsidy is distasteful to most Americans. If a merchant marine can be had in no other way there is much, nevertheless, to be said in its favor. A ship subsidy is no different essentially from a tariff subsidy to industry. We do not believe in either principle, but realize there are exceptions which must be taken into account if we are to be practical and hold our own industrially and commercially. The great danger in subsidies of any kind is that they are overdone, that they encourage dependency, discourage initiative and enterprise, and subject the people to a much larger tax than is legitimate.

Still, the problem of what to do with the merchant marine and what attitude to take toward it in the future remains unsettled. It is one of our important questions and it ought to be studied with an open mind by our people. In the meantime, it is quite evident that the least we can do is to encourage the successful operation of the ships we now have by giving them our patronage in preference to ships flying other flags.

THE RAILROAD PIONEERS

Much information of historical interest concerning the contests between pioneer railroad builders is being divulged in the Gould estate hearing in New York. There is a family quarrel over the management and distribution of the Gould millions, and members of the family are testifying as to facts which some of them, at least, would like to keep secret. The story has just been told of the rivalry between the late E. H. Harriman and the late George J. Gould to form a continuous rail route from the Atlantic to the Pacific. Neither realized his ambition, but the testimony reveals that Harriman frustrated Gould's efforts when realization seemed to be in immediate prospect.

The Goulds had several chances to own a transcontinental system. Once, many years ago, they could have bought the Delaware, Lackawanna & Western for an insignificant amount. This would have given them a road from New York to the Great Lakes and the Mississippi and Missouri rivers, with the lines already owned. Then, perhaps, they had no dream of a great coast-to-coast system. Yet, it would have been good judgment and foresight to enter the metropolis. Another mistake of judgment was the invasion of Pittsburgh by the Wabash. This road cost so much more than the estimates and produced so much less traffic than has been anticipated, that the Gould finances were crippled. It was this failure which reduced the Gould financial reserves and enabled Harriman to defeat the Goulds.

Later the great railroad generals planned ocean-to-ocean roads and bent their energies to carry out their hopes and leave these roads as monuments to their constructive genius. Their campaigns were the first attempts at extensive consolidation. Previous to these movements railroads were restricted to certain geographical limits by gentlemen's agreements or undertakings. An eastern railroad could not cross the Mississippi or the Ohio. There were eastern lines, northwestern, southwestern and southern. Railroads of each group were expected to stay in their own territory.

The Gould family once was a mighty power in transportation. It had lines from Chicago to the Gulf and the Mexican border; from Buffalo to the Missouri river and Denver, from Denver to Salt Lake, and from Salt Lake to San Francisco. When its ambition cracked, it disposed of its railroad holdings.

Had the Lackawanna been purchased, or had the Wabash not been extended to Pittsburgh, the testimony in the New York hearing probably would be different or more likely there would be no hearing of a family dispute. Whatever their ambitions, rivalries, successes or failures, our railroad pioneers were among the great builders of the country. They were the kind of men of which strong nations are made. They typified all that went into this country or creative and constructive genius. They were entitled to the rewards they received, and few of the concessions made to them to stimulate their enterprise were excessive, considering what was at stake and the inestimable benefits the country received.

TRADE REVIVAL IN EUROPE

LONDON gives us the information that prices on finished textile goods are rising. The cost of materials used in garments has increased. But it is noteworthy that France, Belgium and Germany are ordering more clothing, and there is a demand in each of these countries for the better qualities.

So far the increase in price seems to be about ten per cent, but it ranges to twenty per cent. The increase will not stop with the greater cost of material, but it will, with the strong demand continuing, go also into workmanship. Nothing could favor our commercial welfare better than price increases in Europe.

TODAY'S POEM

By HAL COCHRAN

PUPPY LOVE.

TWO little youngsters, a lass and a lad, out for a walk, hand in hand. Each with expression that indicate glad, and how plainly we all understand.
 The wee little boy, maybe five years or more, has the feeling he's really a man, escorting the neighbor-girl down to the store, so's to help her 'see' all that he can.
 He watches outside as she enters the place. It's in kid-days that such things occur. And then she comes out with a smile on her face as he carries her bundles for her.
 They slowly walk home and they talk about school, and she asks him what class he is in. "Why, I'm in the first grade," he will boast, as a rule, and thus will their friendship begin.
 She's just a new neighbor, this fair little lass, and she lives just two houses above her little boy friend, so it cometh to pass that she's moved into real puppy love.

 Dr. Brady will answer all signed letters pertaining to health. Writer's names are never printed. Only inquiries of general interest are answered in this column, but all letters will be answered by mail if written in ink and a stamped, self-addressed envelope is enclosed. Requests for diagnosis or treatment of individual cases cannot be considered. Address Dr. William Brady, in care of this paper.

HANGING ONTO THE PROPS.

Today I intended to go a little further into the question of the proper propping of the only arch that really amounts to anything, but somebody sends me newspaper clipping in which I discover an old familiar prop which demands immediate attention. The clipping is from a Chicago newspaper and bears the title "Open Season for Colds at Hand, Bundesen Warns." According to the article, Dr. Herman Bundesen, the health commissioner of Chicago, gives this advice to persons suffering with alleged "colds."

"Stay at home. Take a hot bath. Take a cathartic. Then if necessary call the family doctor."
 About the same time I received through the courtesy of Dr. Bundesen, the Weekly Bulletin of the Chicago department of health, in which Dr. Bundesen offers this advice:

"With the first running of the nose is the time that the cold can best be abated if you: Stay home. Take a hot bath. Go to bed. Take a physic. If necessary, call your family physician."
 All of which is excellent. But Dr. Bundesen goes into the question of prevention rather more in detail, and I quote what he says in the Bulletin about the—

Prevention of a Cold.
 The prevention of a cold consist in first avoiding the infection as far as possible, and secondly, guarding against predisposing or underlying causes.

Rest. The proper amount of rest, and an abundance of fresh air, not too hot and free from dust. Abundant water and correct diet, keeping the bowels open—cleanliness—avoiding undue exposure to cold and wet and aid in the prevention of colds. Keep a can of water on your steam radiators during the heating season to prevent the drying of the room air. This will save your nasal secretions which is a great bar to the cold producing germs.

That allusion to "undue exposure" is the old familiar prop I am sorry to see Dr. Bundesen using. The whole issue of the Bulletin is given over to the discussion of "colds" and Dr. Bundesen dwells on the infectious or communicable character of the diseases which masquerade under that title. He even speaks quite favorably of the chlorine treatment—much of course is based on the belief that germs alone are responsible for the alleged "colds." He dwells on the manner in which these respiratory-infections are spread from child to child in school—and here again he carefully preserves the old prop by including in the same paragraph with the swapping of gum, placing contaminated pencils, fingers and the like in the mouth and being sneezed or coughed upon, "chilling through wet and cold feet; insufficient clothing; and by sitting in a draught when overheated."

This "undue exposure" prop makes the whole argument look weak. If any such factor is concerned at all, then it is unfortunate and confusing for a health adviser or physician to warn people about it without specifying clearly what constitutes "undue exposure." How much fresh air may be safely admitted without the risk of "chilling" somebody? How much ventilation may there be provided in a school room without admitting a "draught"? Such questions will forever remain unanswerable until the health authorities discard this Machiavellian prop.

QUESTIONS AND ANSWERS.

No Change, Just Arrest.

You say there is no such thing as change of life. Would you please let me know the meaning of menopause. (Mrs. E. O.)
 Answer.—Menopause means the cessation of menstruation, which occurs normally about the age of 47 years. When I said there is no such thing as change of life I meant that this arrest of functions in no way impairs a woman's health.

LOOKING BACKWARD

TWENTY-FIVE YEARS AGO.
 Tuesday, Nov. 7, 1899.

The Boers lost 800 in killed, wounded and captured in Thursday's battle near Ladysmith, Africa. The first autonomous government of the Philippines was established yesterday in the Island of the Negros.

The annual meeting of Appleton Humane society was to be held Tuesday evening at the Sherman house.

Lecia, little son of Mr. and Mrs. Otto Buchmann, was kicked on the leg by a horse this afternoon and was quite badly injured.

Governor Schofield accepted an invitation to be present at the Founder's day banquet in Lawrence university chapel next Monday evening.

Julius Walte, deputy game warden, confiscated three deer that were being shipped through Appleton without any one's accompanying them.

Philip Krausatz and family of Kaukauna moved to Appleton today.

L. W. Ihrig of Neenah was an Appleton visitor Monday.

There were ten prisoners in the county jail, none of whom were serving more than 90 days.

A daughter was born to Mr. and Mrs. P. Rademacher Tuesday.

Thomas McMullen sold his farm in Osborn and moved to Appleton.

George Penn suffered a laceration of one of his hands while working in a local machine shop.

Druggists were considering the possibility of the early closing arrangement.

TEN YEARS AGO

Tuesday, Nov. 2, 1914.

Both Republicans and Democrats looked for a record vote to be polled today. E. L. Philipp, Republican, opposed John C. Karel, Democrat, for governor and Francis E. McGovern, formerly of Appleton, was the Republican candidate for United States senator against Paul O. Husting, Democrat.

John J. Blaine was an independent candidate for governor.

Russian and Turkish troops were reported to be clashing at Arabizond, Serbian and Montenegrin ministers were recalled from the Turkish capital.

Frank Lamel of Green Bay lay wounded in St. Elizabeth hospital from being shot accidentally on a hunting trip near Osborn.

Many false reports alleging the discovery of Wenzel Kabat, escaped murderer, were being circulated. A sheriff's posse captured a man in a wood near Plymouth, but the suspect proved to be a vagrant.

Lawrence college students were taking up subscriptions in behalf of war stricken Belgians.

The board of education last night decided to establish an ungraded room in Appleton for the benefit of pupils who could not keep up with their grades. The wedding of Miss Anna Frances Schneider, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Charles Schneider, 951 College-ave, to Bartholomew Maloney of Milwaukee took place this morning in St. Joseph church.

The Schaefer club met last night at the home of H. C. Gotschow.

Miss Myrtle Roland of Grand Rapids, was guest of honor Monday evening at a towel shower given by Mrs. Charles Herlick, Rankin-st. Miss Roland was to be married soon to Henry Jackson of Neenah.

SEEN, HEARD and IMAGINED

---thats all there is to life

Well, today is the big day, but in newspaper circles it is known only as the long day.

While they are trying to bring about economy in government, they might give the idea of lowering the high cost of making presidents a little thought.

How can you keep cool with Coolidge.
 Or play Little David with Davis, When it is so hard to Laf with LaFollette?

Election day is the voters house-cleaning day, but what a queer time of the year to hold a spring house-cleaning.

There will be a lot of sick people after today, but they'll need something else besides a doctor.

A reporter writes that city mail carriers had to work for a change last Saturday afternoon on account of the great quantity of election literature and the usual "first-of-the-month bills." Is there any connection between the two classes of mail. Bills usually are the last word in election literature. After the voting comes the paying, y'understand.

How times do change! Ten years ago a Republican candidate for clerk of court couldn't get to first base.

This is the end of a long and strenuous campaign. It also is the end of the rope for some candidates.

At sunrise this morning there was the usual squad on the firing line. The barrage of ballots is not expected until this evening, although the election boards would have liked a little exercise this morning and this afternoon just to keep fit.

In voting, like in everything else, there is often a lot of shrinkage in delivery. One fellow this morning started out with the intention of voting for home rule for cities. When he got inside the booth, he voted "No!" It must have been the austere gaze of the election clerk that did it.

For the last four years we have been repeating the prophecies of a number of sages that the chief issue in the 1924 presidential election would be the wet and dry issue. And now, look!

One of our women readers wants to know whether this gush fund that they are always talking about is to be used in removing the snow from our streets this winter. Yes, we foresee more worries for Bob Connolly.

THE BIG QUESTION

Well, when the campaign is all over—and everything is said and done—if the exact truth were told—it will have been demonstrated only one thing: That the American people are the greatest gluttons for punishment the world has ever known.

Uncle Sam Teaches Use Of Lumber

BY FREDERICK J. HASKIN
 Washington, D. C.—Among his multitudinous activities in the public interest Uncle Sam conducts a school for the benefit of all lumber or wood using industries. Short, intensive training courses are given at the forest products laboratory of the forest service at Madison, Wis., that demonstrates the practical solutions of the problem of factory and mill, and manufacturers and salesmen from all parts of the country are enrolled as students.

Thus far some 800 individuals, representing a wide variety of interests, have attended these courses, and many firms value this service so highly that they send representatives to the classes regularly.

The next courses will be held in December, the first opening on the first day of the month, and enrollments are now being received. Unfortunately the laboratory does not have sufficient funds to make it possible to give this service to all public, consequently a cooperative charge is made to cover the cost of the demonstration courses. This charge is uniformly $100 for the courses of one week and $150 for the two weeks' course.

The forest products is maintained in cooperation with the University of Wisconsin to promote the best and most economical use of the products of our forests and thereby help to perpetuate the forests themselves. While it is primarily a research institution the laboratory has as one of its primary functions the task of getting into practical application and use the knowledge and processes it discovers. It has gathered much practical information on the properties of wood and on the manufacture and use of wood products. The economical use of wood, it points out, is of large importance not only to the nation as a whole, threatened as it is with the consequences of forest depletion, but to the industries which will benefit by improved practices and by the savings of raw material.

The laboratory publishes the results of its researches in bulletins, technical notes, and articles in trade journals. It also employs correspondence and personal contact for the same purpose. In still other instances it has found its greatest success in personal instruction, by which manufacturers, trade specialists, salesmen and consumers meet at the laboratory for demonstrations, tests, lectures, study and the discussion of individual problems.

Hence, the school. Demonstration courses are given in the kiln drying of lumber, boxing and crating, gluing of wood, and wood properties and uses. The instruction in these subjects aims to give not only basic knowledge but its practical application, and that it has been found extremely valuable is evidenced by the testimony of many men who have attended the courses.

There is one motor vehicle for every 7.3 persons in the United States.

A clergyman who looked in at a fancy dress ball in St. Paul, Pa., England, was awarded the prize for having the second best costume.

TWO FLOORS OF GOOD THINGS TO WEAR

Adventures In The Library

By ARNOLD MULDER

IS A BOOK EVER FINISHED?
 There are authors with many volumes to their credit who nevertheless claim that they have never really finished a book. This is in fact a very common claim, so common that it has almost become an affection. You almost become a writer's work perhaps and he may say or at least imply, "Oh yes, that's all well and good, but what was actually published was only a sort of outline of the book I had in mind. Oh for more time, the right conditions! If I could only at some time finish a book!"

A subtle form of self-praise of course. "Certainly the book is good, as you say," he means, "but I could do so much better if not handicapped by this, that, and the other thing."
 But it is a question whether a writer would get nearer to finishing his books if all the conditions that he thinks handicap him were removed. The truth probably is that most writers get about as much down on paper as they are capable of at the time of writing and would not do much more if they had a world of time at their disposal. It is a fact, for instance, that the writers who have nothing else in the world to do but write—who have the money that buys them the leisure to devote all their time to their art—are just as likely to feel that their books, when once published unfinished as are the writers who have to do their work on the fly, in odd moments stolen from the business of making a living.

REVIVRE THEIR WORKS
 Henry James never had anything more anxious to do than drink tea so far as his living went but he was always troubled by the fact that his books were not finished. In his old age he went so far as to rewrite several of those published in his youth. Hamelin Garlin, though not well-to-do never held down a routine job, but he complains in "A Daughter of the Middle Border" that he has never had time enough for a single one of his books.

Away back in the fifties of last century Herman Melville indulged in the same complaint. "Moby Dick," that tremendous story of the chase of a white whale, is about a thousand closely printed pages in length and a prescient reader might assume that for once a writer had not left a word unsaid about his subject. But Melville complains that "Moby Dick," as printed is only an imperfect outline of the topic of the white whale that he had in mind.

HAVENT THE POWER
 Books are left unfinished and published in that state not because writers haven't time to finish them as a general thing, but because they haven't the power. It may perhaps be set down as a basic fact that the conception of a book is always greater than the execution. And for the very good reason that there are many fears, feelings, nuances that cannot be expressed. It is likely that everybody who has ever tried to write is familiar with this fact. It is the same with all the arts. A painter has to work on a flat surface; there are things that cannot be done on a flat surface—he is limited by his material. Sculptor works with inanimate matter; he cannot impart life to it but can only suggest life. He is limited by his material. A writer deals in words and even at best words are only imperfect tools—the writer is limited by his material.

Every piece of imaginative literature therefore is a kind of experiment. The reader perhaps imagines the writer as sitting in his study absolutely sure of himself, writing what he wants to write. Nine times out of ten the writer fools himself a poor blunderer in his study (if he has one), trying, tripping, always trying but never really succeeding. In the end he quits and publishes his book in a kind of disgust, only to turn around and try again with another. Sometimes he hits a little closer to the bull's eye than at other times.

This is probably true of all writers who are genuine artists. They may or may not succeed financially. The true artist, even if his book sells a million copies, is likely to continue to feel that it is not really finished. Perhaps he is glad the public doesn't know this.

Q. What is the origin of the expression "ships that pass in the night"? F. J. McE.

A. The phrase "ships that pass in the night" is from a poem by this name by Henry W. Longfellow. Boastful Harnden used the line as the title of her novel.

Q. Why is it that the Sun does not heat the atmosphere except for a short distance from the earth, and yet the earth is heated? F. C.

A. The Naval Observatory says the Earth is heated by sunlight in the same way as a room is heated by sunlight coming through a window-pane, while the pane itself remains comparatively cool. Similarly a green-house often becomes insufferably warm within on a clear, cool day. The explanation is that both air and glass are transparent to sunlight or, in general to radiation from any incandescent source; but are opaque to radiation from objects at an ordinary temperature. The atmosphere may be called a "transparent blanket," which lets in the sunlight, but will not let out the heat.

Baby's Health

CHILDREN'S BUREAU, U. S. DEPARTMENT OF LABOR

What the Baby Can't Eat
Ham, bacon, cabbage, pork, pickles, tea, coffee, beer, bananas, berries, cake, candy, or ice cream should not be given to babies or little children.

Teething
Teething rarely causes serious illness. If the child seems to be ill do not put it down to teething, but consult the doctor.

Diarrhea
As soon as the baby has diarrhea or vomiting, stop all food at once, and give only boiled water or clear barley water until the doctor sees the baby.

Fresh Air
Give the baby pure, fresh air day and night, and keep the windows open, but screened in the summer to exclude flies and mosquitoes. Keep the baby in the open air when possible, but avoid the sun during hot weather. Select the shady side of street.

Avoid Infection
Keep the room free from soiled clothes and rubbish. Do not encourage the baby to play with cats or dogs; they often have disease germs in their fur. Do not let the child crawl around on a dirty floor or dusty carpet. Do not let it put playthings in its mouth.

Bathing
Every child should have one tub bath daily. On very warm days two 10-minute spongings with cool soda water (one teaspoonful of bicarbonate of soda to a pint of water) will add greatly to the baby's comfort.

Clothes
Do not put too many clothes on the baby. A band, shirt, tettercoat and dress are all that are needed in the house. During very hot days a napkin, band and a thin muslin slip are all the baby needs.

Sleep
Be sure the baby gets two naps a day and at least 12 hours' sleep at night. Do not let it sleep on a feather pillow. The baby should sleep in a bed or crib by itself—never in bed with the mother.

Do not rock or jounce the baby, and remember that constant handling is harmful. Keep the baby and the bed clothes clean. Diapers should be carefully washed as soon as they become soiled and then dried in the open air. Never use a diaper the second time without washing it.

Under no circumstances should soothing syrups be given to the baby. They contain opium and are dangerous.

Good Habits
Training the baby into good habits. Do not get the child into the habit of expecting to be carried about if it cries. Train the baby to go to sleep by itself in the dark.
A well-trained baby makes a well-behaved child.

To The Mothers of Appleton

If any mother with a baby under one year of age has not received a copy of that beautiful and authoritative book "Baby's Health" call upon the Appleton Post-Crescent, or any members in Appleton of the Baby's Health Association and a copy will be given free.

CHLORINE GAS For Respiratory Infections

During the World War it was discovered that chlorine gas is very effective in the prevention and cure of influenza, acute colds in head and chest, sore throat, whooping cough, acute and chronic bronchitis, and acute and chronic laryngitis (hoarseness). Out of 937 government employees treated by the U. S. Medical Corps at Edgewood Arsenal, Md., 71% were cured and only 5% showed no material improvements. Cures in a large percentage of cases resulted at the very first treatment. One hour spent in our chlorine gas room will help you greatly. It is decidedly beneficial and economical, preventing loss of time from business. This room is at the service of the public.

Treatments Begin on the Even Hour Daily Except Sunday Until 9 P. M.

APPLETON GAME NETS SURPLUS FOR ATHLETICS

Kaukauna High School Officials Well Pleased With Attendance

Kaukauna—Incomplete financial reports on last Friday's football game here between Kaukauna and Appleton high have revealed that the estimate of 1,000 persons in attendance was very conservative. At least 1,500 were at the game for money to cover that many admissions has already been secured. There still are some who have not settled up for their tickets.

Expenses for the game naturally were very light, since the Appleton team received only enough to pay expenses, leaving a comfortable surplus in the high school athletic treasury. Some of the money will be used to pay for football equipment purchased early this year.

New basketball suits for the team also have been bought and it is said they are not only serviceable but very attractive. Some school officials have in mind the construction of bleachers in the auditorium for the basketball season. The plan undoubtedly will provide much room for crowds and will give everyone the same chance to see the game. Nothing definite on this matter has been announced as yet.

INDIANS SIGN ROLL AT TOUSEY HOME

Kaukauna—A roll call of Six Nation Indians in this vicinity will be held Friday and Saturday at the home of C. E. Tousey, Beaulieu Hill, 704 E. Ninth-st. All Indians are expected to register. THREE BANDS PLAY ON ARMISTICE DAY FOR GRID CONTEST

New London Eleven Will Battle East DePere as Feature of Holiday

New London — Football plans for the remaining two games of the season were made on Monday morning, during the regular assembly period in the high school. The school feels "blue" about the result of Saturday's 6-3 win for Oconto Falls. New London had two touchdowns, which were both ruled off by the referee.

Coach Koten gave a talk, in which he attributed the defeat to poor defense. Several of the players were called upon and also made short speeches.

The game was a financial loss, expenses totalling $60, while only $35.00 was taken in at the gate. This leaves the Athletic association's treasury at $32.22.

Big plans are being made for the Armistice day game, to be played here between New London and East DePere. This is the last game of the season.

It is expected that the town, including the business places and schools, will close up next Tuesday for the game. The local factories have all ready consented to do so. The Armistice day program in the hands of the American legion, and it is planning on the game to be one of the stellar attractions of the day. The American Legion drum corps, the City band and the high school band will all be out, and it is expected that 1,000 people will witness the game, which begins at the city park at 2:30.

The high school commenced its sessions at 8:20 Tuesday morning and closed at 12:20, and a great majority of the students left for Menasha to attend the game shortly after noon. The Rotary and Lion clubs furnished cars to take many of the students to Menasha.

WALL STREET SEES $10,000,000 BET ON VOTE OUTCOME

Betting on Elections Is Recognized Institution in Financial District

By Associated Press
New York—Betting on the result of the presidential election has become a recognized and established institution in Wall Street, and indications are that this year it will exceed all records.

Betting commissioners report that $2,000,000 already has been wagered on the result and that the total probably will reach $10,000,000 before election night. About 80 per cent of the bets placed in New York originate in the metropolitan area, the remainder being scattered throughout the country.

Inasmuch as members of the various stock and commodity exchanges are forbidden to place bets, the bulk of the business is handled through three or four "outside houses." These firms do not wager their own money, but merely act as stakeholders and bring the betters together, the charge for their services being 5 per cent of the winnings.

So far as is known, the legality of the practice never has been questioned and no complaints have ever been registered against these firms. They require all clients to submit cash, certified checks or money orders with their bets except in last minute transactions with firms that are well known to them, when the business is usually done over the telephone.

When the bet has been placed, the commissioner gives the bettor a contract reading somewhat as follows:

"In the event that 'John Doe' is elected President of the United States we promise to pay you $4,000, less commissions."

This would represent the long end of a bet of $3,000 to $1,000. In the event that the bettor's candidate won, he would receive a check for $3,850, which would represent his original deposit of $3,000 and his winnings of $1,000 minus the 5 per cent commission on his winnings.

The loser in this case would have received a contract reading, as follows:

"In the event that 'John Doe' is not elected President of the United States we promise to pay you $4,000, less commissions."

If John Doe had been defeated, the recipient of this contract would have received a check for $3,850, which would have represented the return of his original deposit of $3,000 and his winnings of $3,000, minus the 5 per cent commission.

Betting commissioners report that some of the large wagers frequently represent something more than a gamble on the maker's political judgment. Many of them represent hedges against a speculative position in the stock or commodity markets that is likely to be affected by the election. Thus, if a trader is long of several thousand shares and there is a possibility of an "adverse" candidate being elected and the quoted value of his securities impaired, he will take the short end of a bet on the adverse candidate in order to limit his probable losses in the stock market in the event the candidate is elected.

Industrial Commission Warns Against Starting or Quickening Fire with Kerosene.

Kerosene may start a fire in a hurry, but it is better to be safe than sorry, is the warning contained in a bulletin received by Chief G. P. McGillen of the fire department from the state industrial commission.

The injudicious use of kerosene has been responsible not only for many fires causing great losses but also for frequent deaths and serious injuries. In the first half of 1924 eight deaths and ten right injuries have been traced to this cause, it is said.

Kerosene is used to start and to quicken a fire, but the practice of quickening a fire in this manner is the more dangerous.

"When live coals or even hot ashes are in the fire box," it is pointed out, "and kerosene is thrown or poured on, an explosive gas is generated rapidly. A live coal, even the tiniest spark, or a lighted match will then cause a violent explosion which usually sets fire to the dross of the thoughtless operator. The most foolhardy practice is to pour kerosene in the firebox from a can. The explosion in the stove spreads back to the can, it explodes in turn, throwing burning kerosene all over the person, usually resulting in death. But little less dangerous is the practice of pouring oil from a cup or tin can into a hot firebox, or pouring it on kindling in a cold fire box."

Since it is known that persons will use kerosene in spite of warnings, the following suggestions are offered for its use:

1. Always use an open top cup or can.
2. Always put a lighted paper in ahead of the dash of kerosene, and throw kerosene on a blaze, never on a dead fire.
3. Make your first dash of kerosene very small until you get a good blaze going. Otherwise white fumes might form with a nonconducting wall of air between them and the lighted fumes and thus set up the chimney ready for an explosion later.

Edward Gengler Arrested for Bootlegging at Dance, Faces 6-month Term

Edward Gengler was arrested Saturday by Walter Scherck, deputy sheriff, for selling moonshine liquor at a dance in Center on Halloween.

The arrest grew out of that of Walter Duman who was apprehended by Scherck for the same offense. Duman said that the liquor he had sold he bought from Gengler. The latter refused to divulge from whom he had obtained his liquor, when questioned by Judge A. M. Spencer in municipal court. The judge sent him back to jail with the threat that he would sentence him to six months in the workhouse unless he gave the information. The man had not yet changed his mind Monday noon.

Theodore Knipping, who was arrested last week for possession of a moonshine still, pleaded not guilty and was released on his furnishing bonds in the sum of $500. The trial was set for Nov. 5.

SYLVESTER VERSTEGEN IS FINED FOR SPEEDING

Sylvester Verstegen of Little Chute, was arrested by Carl Radtke, city motorcycle officer, Sunday for speeding on Rankin at the rate of 28 miles an hour. The driver was assessed the customary $10 and costs in municipal court Monday morning.

Elmer Klipsz, Appleton, also paid a fine of $1 and costs for failure to stop for an arterial highway sign.

GET 380 MEMBERS MORE THAT QUOTA IN KIMBERLY DRIVE

Campaign for Community Club Nets 1080—Yellow Division Is Winner

Kimberly village experienced an unusual outcome to its membership campaign for Kimberly Community club when announcement was made at a noon luncheon of workers at the clubhouse Friday that the quota of 380 members had been exceeded by 380, making the total enrollment 1080.

Members of the yellow division in the Kimberly-Clark company safety contest won the race. They were pitted against the green division and against a corps of villagers made up into teams. They obtained 529 members, the green 440 and the village aggregation 111.

Miss Minnie Verhagen was the best campaigner, obtaining a total of 99 membership for the yellows. John VandenBoogart was next with 49 for the village squad and Glenn Fries came third with 36 for the greens.

WORKED BY TEAMS

Captains of the various teams were, Yellows, Jack Jansen, Ernest Gennesse, Angus McIntyre, Henry Engers and Edward Nelson; greens, Miss Minnie VanDulwick, Alex. Malcom, Fred Kroenke, Glenn Fries and J. C. Ritten.

M. H. Kettenhofen, chairman of the campaign, presided at the luncheon. "The meeting marked the close of the drive which had been in progress three days. Ernest Mahler, general manager and fourth vice president, and S. P. Shattuck, treasurer of Kimberly-Clark Co., spoke in praise of the contest as representatives of the board of directors.

LEADERS GIVE TALKS

Chairmen of the three divisions also gave talks. They were Peter VanderVelde, leading the yellows, William Mehring, the greens, and Paul Lochschmidt, the village.

Mr. Lochschmidt also represented Cecelian band and Kimberly Dramatic club. Further speakers were Miss Geraldine Sarassen, representing K. C. Smile club, Joseph Doerfler of Kimberly club board of directors, and J. C. Ritten, representing mill workers.

Miss Mary Baker was complimented on her work in decorating the clubhouse for the various gatherings that have been held there, especially the Halloween party Thursday evening for all workers at Kimberly Clark mill.

Kimberly people were promised by Kimberly-Clark company that if the goal of 700 was reached in the campaign the clubhouse would be enlarged to include a stage. This project now will be carried out, according to announcement at the dinner.

A balcony also will be placed around the auditorium of the building.

Membership in Kimberly Community club includes a fee of two dollars which gives use of the new clubhouse built by Kimberly-Clark company. Shower baths, gymnasium privileges, reading rooms, radio programs and other features are included.

Roman Emperor Picked Sunday For Sabbath

Why Sunday and not Saturday is kept for the Sabbath was one of the interesting questions put to Frederic J. Haskin, director of the Post-Crescent Information Bureau at Washington, D. C., by a Navarino reader of the paper. He discovered that in the year 321, Emperor Constantine of Rome issued an edict that the Sabbath should be observed on the first day of the week. Before this, the last day of the week had been observed by the Christians as well as the Jews since this time the Sabbath or Sunday, has been reckoned as the first day by the majority of Christians.

Many interesting and instructive facts such as this are given daily by Mr. Haskin. He will answer questions on any subject that is brought to his attention by readers of the Post-Crescent to the fullest extent.

"Y" WILL RECEIVE ELECTION REPORTS

Special Western Union messenger service will be provided for the Y. M. C. A. for election returns Tuesday night. COULD NOT LIFT HAND TO FIX HER HAIR

Wisconsin Lady Was in Such a Weakened Condition.

"Disappointment followed every effort I made trying to regain my health until I began taking Tanlac," is the candid statement of Mrs. Mary Arpentigny, 208 5th Ave., East, Ashland, Wis.

"For two years I had suffered untold agony from rheumatism in my right arm and hand. I could not even lift my hand to comb my hair and for six weeks at one time I was helpless. Indigestion and loss of appetite made matters worse and I could not express how distressing life was to me."

"Finally my brother urged me to try Tanlac and my improvement began with the very first bottle. Now my appetite is fine, indigestion gone and every sign of rheumatism has left me. In fact, I feel fine in every way and hope others will profit by my experience."

Tanlac is for sale by all good druggists. Accept no substitute. Over 40 million bottles sold.

"The Nervous Wreck"

By E. J. Rath

Copyright 1924 by NEA Service Inc.

"And don't forget that gun," added Sally. "Kidnaped!" Do I look like a person who could be kidnaped?" "You never took the train," muttered Bob Wells, staring at her. Again he turned to the Wreck.

"If you're bent for punishment," he said, "you'll never get out of the state alive."

"At last!" agreed the Wreck. Sally turned a look of amazement toward him.

"Henry Williams," she cried, "don't you be a fool. And you, Bob Wells, put that gun away."

"I don't get it at all," said the sheriff, helplessly.

"Well, you'd better get it," Sally exclaimed.

"What do you mean by chasing me all over the country?"

Bob Wells stared.

"You heard me. I said chasing me. Do you think I'm a criminal?"

The sheriff was dazed.

"I wasn't pursuing you," he faltered.

"Yes, you were. You pursued me up here, didn't you? I won't have it, Bob Wells. You wait till I tell Dad Morgan."

"I was out after a gang," said the sheriff. "How did I know?"

"It's your business to know."

"I didn't know it was my girl. I didn't know it was any girl."

"Your girl," said Sally. "Bob Wells, you're a whole lot stupider than I thought you were."

The sheriff shook his head in a weary way.

"You talk me up," he said.

"She told it from the very beginning. She told it with gestures and high inflections, but she kept it all in orderly sequence."

"So that's what happened and that's why I'm here," concluded Sally. Bob Wells considered it for a minute.

"Why didn't you telephone home?" he asked.

"If you can't understand, it's not worth while trying to make you."

"It's mighty queer. I don't see how you can explain."

"What?" cried Sally.

"A lot of things. You go running around the country with this man—God knows what kind of a record he's got—and you seem to think it's nothing at all."

"Stop!"

But the sheriff was recovering poise. He was a man whose rights had been trifled with. His honor, which was sitting way to resentment.

"What kind of a position does it leave you in?" he demanded.

Sally rested her hand on the Wreck's arm and regarded Bob Wells with a blistering stare.

"And you're engaged to me," said the sheriff, with a grim finality.

"Am I?" Sally was holding herself steady.

"Well, aren't you?"

"I think you've said so several times, Bob Wells."

The sheriff was becoming uneasy again.

"Haven't I a right to an explanation?"

"Presumably—if we were engaged. But we're not."

"Sally!"

She waved the protest aside.

"Oh, it's not just because you don't trust me," she said. "I've decided for instance, that I don't want to be somebody's cook."

Bob Wells made a sign of bewilderment.

"I reckon you know what I mean," said Sally.

"But I don't."

"Well, if you want an explanation, I heard everything you said to Mr. Underwood, while you were eating supper. When you get a good cook the things to do is to rope her and brand her and don't let her get outside the corral. Remember that? I do."

"I'm going to marry one. Remember that? When it comes to cooking I don't have to take off my hat to anybody. Perhaps you remember that one, too. You told him all about the wonderful wife you were marrying—it was a cook. Do you get it?"

The sheriff swallowed and turned a dull red. "We just happened to be talking about apples," he said.

"Mends and cooks. That's what you think about and talk about the most," Bob Wells said, looking at the Wreck.

"Until I listened at the crack of the door. Perhaps you'll marry a cook some day, Mr. Sheriff, but her name won't be Sally Morgan."

The Wreck listened with a queer intermingling of triumph and dismay.

"I reckon it's lucky on both sides."

"Yes," affirmed Sally.

"I'm not lankier to marry anybody who goes running around—"

"Easy on that," cautioned the Wreck.

"Why, back at Underwood's they told me they had a married couple working for them," blurted the sheriff.

"That was simply Henry's idea to cover a situation," remarked Sally, in a composed voice.

The Wreck stood glaring.

"Wait till your old man gets the news," said the sheriff.

"When Dad gets it he'll get it all," declared Sally. "What's more, he'll believe it, too. And if he wants to know if I'm engaged to anybody, I'll tell him 'yes.' I'm engaged to Henry Williams."

The sheriff's jaw dropped. The Wreck almost swallowed his tongue.

"I am engaged to Henry Williams," repeated Sally, in a clear voice.

"Is that true?" demanded the sheriff, looking at the Wreck.

It seemed to Henry Williams that the universe was crashing about his ears. But he called calmly.

"She said it didn't she?" he cried.

"Yes, she said it," admitted Bob Wells.

The sheriff could not think of any other move for half a minute. He was stumped. He was angry, too.

"I feel sorry for you, Sally," he said. "You won't marry him very soon, anyhow."

"You mean you're going to take him to jail?"

"I'm the sheriff," Bob Wells, reminded her.

She was incredulous for an instant. "Then, of course, that means you're going to take me to jail, too," she said.

He shook his head.

"You don't belong in this case," he said.

"Well, you'll not take him without me, Bob Wells."

It seemed to the Wreck that he was merely a bystander.

"As soon as I get to the telephone, I'll send for your father," said Bob Wells.

Sally flared.

"I'm no child. I know what I'm doing," she cried.

"Where's the rest of Williams' gang?" inquired the sheriff.

"Henry Williams hasn't any gang at all, unless it's me," declared Sally.

"Why don't you go out and find Nosey and Lefty and Denver?"

"Who?" asked the sheriff.

"Nosey and Lefty and Denver. I said. Do you mean to tell me you never heard of them?"

Sally looked at the Wreck and laughed.

"What do you think of that, Henry? Here's a sheriff with a real gang in his country and he never heard of them."

She turned to Bob Wells.

"Maybe you can't find them, but Henry and I did. We spent all day yesterday and part of last night with them. But it's a fact, although I don't suppose you'll find it out till Henry and I are in jail and the hold-ups keep right on happening."

"Maybe you can show me this gang," remarked the sheriff.

"Maybe we can," said Sally.

"Henry, shall we show him the gang?"

The Wreck shrugged.

"What's the use?" he asked.

"What would he do with 'em if he got 'em?"

"Still, we might point them out," said Sally. "He might want to scold them."

"They might talk back," objected the Wreck.

"Not if he was polite to them," said Sally.

The sheriff decided it had gone far enough.

"It may look funny to you two," he said, "but if there's any gang around here that I haven't met up with, I figure it might be healthy for Henry Williams, so called, to produce the evidence."

"Well, we don't guarantee they're going to wait for you," observed Sally. "But we'll try to show you the place anyhow."

"Come on, then."

The sheriff turned to his companion.

"Keep your eye on this man," he said.

They started downhill toward the horses. Sally walking beside the Wreck. She gave him a reassuring wink.

CHAPTER XXIV
The Wreck Commands

In single file the sheriff's cavalcade rode across the meadow, back toward the broken woods from which Sally and the Wreck had emerged from at dawn. Sally was in the lead, because she was supposed to remember the trail. Bob Wells took the rear place, mounted again on his own horse.

Sally had carried a hold, conspicuous front in her colloquy with the sheriff, but she was not likely to be the Wreck's case presented unpleasant possibilities. If Jerome Underwood wanted to push matters, as she was afraid he would, the Wreck might find difficulty in getting himself clear.

College Girls May Flunk But They Can Cook

New York.—She may flunk her math or Latin, but the college girl won't fail you when it comes to making fudge.

There's something instructive in the way she understands the mysterious union of sugar, milk and nuts that surprises the more experienced cook.

When she goes out to make her way in the world, however, the cook usually thinks more about theologies as a next ticket than this amazing facility with fudge.

Ethel McLaren was an exception. When she returned to the farm in St. Johnsbury, Vt. with the coveted A. B. in her possession, she couldn't help seeing the old place in terms of fudge instructions.

MATERIAL AT HAND
There were cream-producing Jersey cows in the fields. Butternut trees dotted the farm and barrels of the most delicious flavored sugar were being formed in those maple trees.

She interested a college friend and they experimented for about six months with maple sugar, cream, nuts and all the recipes they could lay their hands on. And at the end of that period announced to the world they were ready to serve them with every known made sugar delicacy.

After four years the kitchens had been enlarged twice the force of workers had multiplied and all was well—except that despite the time, midnight oil and such inconveniences the orders, cluttered the spindle and the deliveries were behind time. Something had to be done.

BUY BIG MANSION

Just about this time the old Governor Fairbanks mansion situated on the road to town was placed on the market. It was located on the main line of tourist travel between Burlington and the White Mountains and was known all over New England.

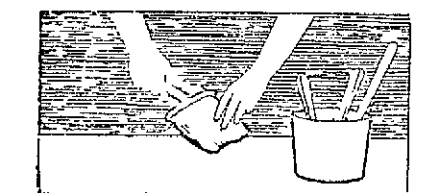

"We'll buy it and have a tea room as well as a candy business," Miss McLaren announced to her partner. You can guess the rest. The tea room was as successful as the candy business. Then another blanch tea room was located in New York City. Miss McLaren and her partner now live on East street while their products go all over the country.

"We're glad we specialized in fudge," they admit even though our teachers tried to turn out at attention book-ward."

Household Suggestions

WASH PAINT BRUSHES

Wash paint brushes in kerosene or turpentine and then in soap and water when you have finished using them. Do not let the paint dry in the brush.

REMOVE FLA SPECKS

To remove fly specks from varnished wood, wipe with a cloth dipped in equal parts of skimmed milk and water.

TO KEEP CHEESE

Cheese will not become mouldy if it is wrapped in a cloth dampened with vinegar.

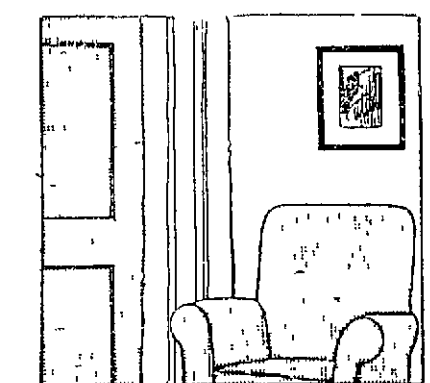

PUT SALT IN WATER

Use salt in the water in which you wash spinach and the sand and grit will be removed.

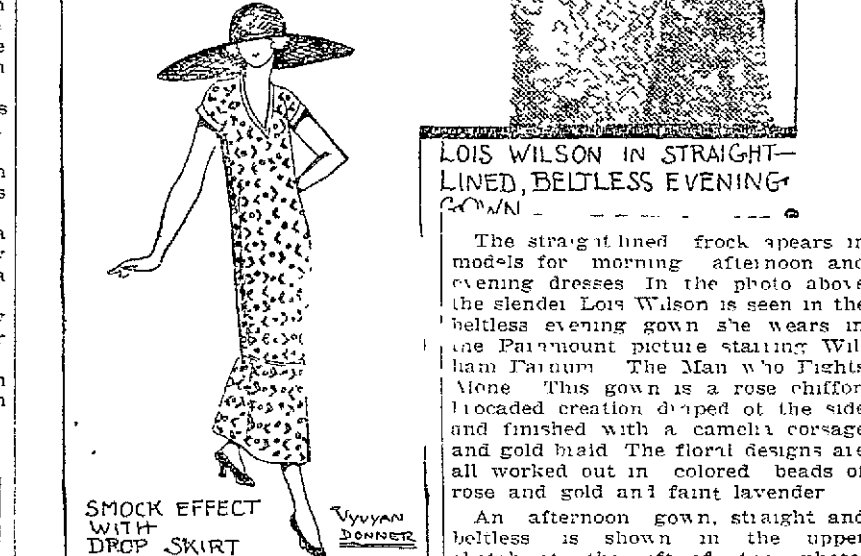

How To Make Homes Cozy

WHEN TO KEEP DOOR OPEN

The doorway from the living room to the dining room should be closed, or the opening covered over unless guests can look into a beautiful view, picture, layout of furniture or other attraction in the dining room. The table in the center and other places that are there for the practical purpose of eating need not be shown to guests in the living room.

An American Goddess Said To Be Slenderest Woman In All The World

There's no doubt about it. The American goddess is a slender creature. And the average American woman is the slenderest of mortals. Slenderer than all other women. And all the world.

No Excuse For Bad Manners At Mealtimes

At the request of several of our readers, we are going to put in our column a little article on "Table Setting." There are so many individual tastes in table service and so many suggestions given in our national women's publications that there cannot help but be a few ideas in common among us.

Everyone agrees that we should all have really good table manners and that there is no excuse for not having them. We observe and find many who haven't but if there are points we really want to learn, we can find many good books on this subject as well as on table setting. And, there are many persons whose table manners are inconspicuous by their gentleness from whom we can learn much.

It is quite as necessary to know where to place the silver, when setting the table correctly as there is need to know how to use it.

In every home, and at each meal, each knife, fork, glass or plate should be in their correct place and the table as carefully set as if you were expecting the most critical guest. Otherwise how can children be taught to act and feel at ease when they dine away from home? It is a good thing where possible for the mother and father to occasionally take the children out to dine at some of the hotels of the better class where they may observe correct table setting and service as well as manners.

From the very beginning a child should be taught the proper handling of the knife, fork and spoon—the way to use them and also the proper use of his napkin etc. A little training in the beginning will soon fasten the habit with him until it is second nature.

There are some general rules for setting a table that are fixed and do not change. There are a few rules that are left to the discretion of the hostess, but the keynote of all table setting is simplicity. Not alone is the table set in a certain manner for the attractiveness of the effect, but for the convenience in serving. The table may be the poorest and the linen and dishes of the cheapest but even with the most expensive furnishings, if everything is scrupulously clean and placed in an orderly and proper manner, the table will be attractive.

We might begin with the setting of the breakfast table. The American breakfast has become a much simpler meal than in the past and lighter breakfasts are eaten.

The practice of using the popular table with dishes is growing in popularity, and the reason for this is a saving of time and because they give the table a fresher appearance. The luncheon set is used now almost everywhere for both the breakfast and luncheon—the tablecloth being of course still used for dinner and is the only proper covering.

For setting the table for breakfast, if you are going to use the dishes, even if it is a breakfast table, the table top with a soft clean cloth to remove all dust, then place the centerpiece as a basket of fruit, flowers or what ever suits the individual taste. The placing of the small dishes will of course mark each place and on each only a plate is placed. At the right of the service plate place the knife, the spoon for cereal, a soup spoon may be used for this—at the right of the knife are placed the spoons for fruit and coffee (some place the spoon for fruit on individual dish with a orange or grapefruit) the butter spreader is placed at upper right-hand side of the butter plate. Instead of the right of the knife, at the left of the plate, a fork and at the left of the fork a napkin. The water glass is placed on a small doily at the point of the knife and the bread and butter plate on another small doily at the tip of the fork on the left of course. If only a butter chip is served, it is placed at the left of the water glass above the knife.

Some luncheon sets now consist of a long runner which extends the full length of the table and across the ends of which are used for the two or four covers. Again large single doilies, oblong or square are often used now in place of the round doilies. These seem to be popular of late especially with the square or oblong tables as they are large enough to place all silver, plates, etc. for each guest.

LETTER FROM ALICE HAMILTON TO LADY BETTY CARNOVAN MY DEAR BETTY

Sometimes I wish I had never come back, for Betty dear, I'm not sure that I shall be a loved wife if I stay in America. Since Karl has come back to this country he is very different from what he was over there. I have found that since we came back and saw my sister, all his old emotions have welled up within him and she is particularly nasty.

Betty, she's really given prettier, and, although she is rather stupid, it is becoming. She has also developed a strain of independence of her family which is particularly exasperating.

I told her the other day in so many words that I wanted her to give me back the pearls Karl was in the room and what do you think he said? He said he would not allow me to take them.

Of course two or three days later he gave me another more gorgeous string than his yet it made me feel that there was something in the love that he had given to Leslie that he had not given to me. I don't want to be jealous of my own sister, but sometimes I cannot help it.

Now I must tell you the most thrilling and exciting part of the whole business. Leslie has never told her husband that those pearls are real or that Karl gave them to her through me. You know she found this out while we were in Europe through breaking them and having them reset. But back of all this there is some mystery which I am sure that Karl knows. I am going to get at it and then Mrs. Leslie Prescott had better look out. I do not think Karl should share a secret with my own sister which he will not tell me.

Do you think Betty that a woman should leave any secrets after she marries him? Perhaps the time will come when I shall feel it my duty to tell John Prescott all that I know. For I can tell you right now that I am not going to allow any one else to be my own sister to come between me and my husband's love.

You don't know how queerly the women dress in America. Betty—much more splendidly for the street than they do in England. Leslie is wearing a tailor-made suit of silk all over very beautiful but oh so expensive, in black and white. Every body is wearing black and white. You know and I must say that I've combined it is universally becoming. Leslie looks very beautiful in it. Karl remained quiet and I'm sure that he really looks at me with a certain admiration for my man's wife. Karl made no comment on this but I am afraid he was annoyed.

Leslie went back to her own home last night. Dad wanted her to go home with us and I was afraid she was going to accept for I did not say we I, but you know that Leslie will have the third anniversary of her wedding next week. She wants to come over to it. I don't think Dad will be able to go and certainly I shall not. I feel as if I had enough of my sister to last me a while. We did not want to stop in New York for long.

So all the time talking about the coming of winter, which has now and a shop and I never could associate with the perspective you know.

I'm going to try to persuade Karl to return to England to live or at least on the continent and away from here after we are married. It will be a hard voice for him, his silly ideas on the subject of America and his home. I'll tell you what I think of both after I'm married and I've lived here a little longer. I don't anticipate that I am going to like America enough to establish a home in it.

So of love to you and yours, my dear Betty. I hope you are happy. (Copyright 1924 NEA Service Inc.)

TOMORROW: Letter from Sally Atherton to Beatrice Grimshaw

When you dream that you have been quite popular in a crowd and are entirely of the opposite sex, do not be elated for it is only a false shadow of the disappointments to come to you.

It is a mean that they are soon to be had an embarrassment in that you will suffer greatly through gossip.

INTERPRETATIONS
If you are enjoying your self among friends you can look for good news from an unexpected quarter soon.

Tenacious accused in a dream is only the forerunner for jealousy that will be aroused in actual life. Beware of it.

Games of chance, even though you win in your dreams spell big losses for you unless you are careful.

To be at a masquerade ball and try unsuccessfully to recognize a person means that you are being a victim of depression.

DREAMS Each Has Its Own Meaning

A Stubborn Cough Loosens Right Up

This home-made remedy is a wonder for quick results. Easily and cheaply made.

Here is a home-made syrup which millions of people have found to be the most dependable means of breaking up stubborn coughs. It is cheap and simple, but very prompt in action. Under its healing, soothing influence, chest soreness goes, phlegm loosens, breathing becomes easier, tickling in throat stops and you get a good night's restful sleep. The usual throat and chest colds are conquered by it in 24 hours or less. Nothing better for bronchitis, hoarseness, croup, throat tickle, bronchial asthma or whooping cough.

To make this splendid cough syrup, pour 2 1/2 ounces of Pinex into a pint bottle and fill the bottle with plain granulated sugar syrup and shake thoroughly. If you prefer use clarified molasses, honey, or corn syrup, instead of sugar syrup. Either way, you get a full pint—a family supply of much better cough syrup than you could buy ready-made for three times the money. Keeps perfectly and children love its pleasant taste.

Pinex is a special and highly concentrated compound of genuine Norway pine extract, known the world over for its prompt healing effect upon the membranes.

To avoid disappointment ask your druggist for "2 1/2 ounces of Pinex" with full directions, and don't accept anything else. Guaranteed to give absolute satisfaction or money promptly refunded. The Pinex Co., St. Wayne, Ind.

Pithers, the yarn lady. "The House That Jack Built!" she exclaimed. "You mean Jack in the Box I suppose."

"Oh, no," said Nancy. "Nothing like that." "That's the only one I know of," said Miss Pithers, passing on. "The House That Jack Built!" he exclaimed the Cut Out Lady. "I never knew that the Jumping Jack was a carpenter."

"Oh I know!" said the Saw Horse. "Jack used me to lay his boards on. So it is gone! If anyone in Doofunny Land has seen it, I'll tell you know!" (To Be Continued) (Copyright, 1924, NEA Service, Inc.)

A very attractive new scarf consists in three layers of georgette crepe, one black and one white and one gray.

SMART FUR
A smart fur for this season is clipped leopard cat. It has the virtue of being comparatively inexpensive as well as stylish.

NARROW BANDS
Bands of fur used on the collars and cuffs of street gowns are very narrow, merely used to outline rather than to swathe.

BLISTERED MATERIALS
Blistered materials in heavy weaves suitable for coats and wraps are new and attractive.

A most gorgeous pajama outfit has trousers and slip top of cloth of gold with a jacket of Chantilly lace.

Tailored smock blouses are worn over tailored skirts for morning wear and some of the smart French houses are showing velvet smocks and velvet skirts for afternoon.

Most of the coat collars of fur this season are very small, even if the coat is lavishly furred elsewhere, because this gives a more youthful line.

Constipation makes bright children dull—give them relief with Kellogg's Bran

Constipation dulls the youthful mind—makes children backward in their studies—makes them listless—and can lead to serious diseases. Constipation is a dangerous disease.

You cannot afford to take chances in getting relief. You cannot afford to experiment or put off. Kellogg's Bran brings relief—permanent relief if eaten regularly. Even in the most chronic cases of constipation it is guaranteed to bring results. If it fails, your grocer will return your money.

Kellogg's Bran, cooked and krumbled, has brought relief to thousands because it is ALL Bran. Remember, only ALL Bran can be 100 per cent effective. That is why Kellogg's Bran is recommended by doctors. It sweeps, cleans and purifies the intestine. It causes regular, healthy, normal action. For it works as nature works. It is ALL Bran.

Have your children eat it regularly—two tablespoons daily—in chronic cases, with every meal. Eat it with milk or cream. Sprinkle it over other cereals. Cook it with hot cereals. Try it in the wonderful recipes on every package.

The flavor is delicious—a crisp, nut-like flavor that delights the taste. Different by far from ordinary bran, which are unpalatable.

Begin serving Kellogg's Bran, cooked and krumbled, to your children to-day. Eat it yourself. The leading hotels and clubs serve it. Made in Battle Creek. It is sold by all grocers.

Appleton High Squad Looks For Hard Tilt With West Green Bay

Orange Eleven Has Slight Edge on Paper, Having Beaten Manitowoc, 38 to 0, While Purple Beat Them, 20 to 0

Appleton high school squads Monday afternoon began to work out for what is expected to be one of the hardest games on their schedule this year, in which West Green Bay invades this city Saturday. With the exception of Kaukauna which bowed to the Orange there Friday, the two Green Bay squads are the greatest rivals Appleton has on its schedule and may be counted upon to put up a good battle here no matter what their previous record may be.

Coach White who directs the efforts of the Purple, has worked his men into a remarkable recovery after their defeat by Fond du Lac, 7 to 6, several weeks ago, and Saturday the Purple took Manitowoc to a 20 to 0 cleaning. Appleton defeated Manitowoc, 28 to 0, Saturday, Oct. 18, which gives the Orange an edge, on paper. The Purple was slow to get started in Saturday's contest but played a wonderful game in the second half and rushed the Shipbuilders all over the grid. Their offense is almost perfect, but their defense could be better. The passing attack was a failure, according to accounts of the tilt. The West Green Bay squad attempted three, none of which was completed, and then abandoned their aerial attack for straight football.

In this department Ketchum, Brunette and Hansen in the backfield probably will give the Orange schoolers a busy time Saturday. These three backs broke through the Shipbuilders' line time after time, and found little trouble in staging long runs around ends. Hansen starred Saturday, making the longest run of the game which was good for 45 yards.

Coach Jule Kevin plans to scrimmage Guy Barlow's second stringers during the week, with the subs using West Green Bay plays.

CHERRY BLOSSOMS BOW TO ST. JOSEPH BLUES

St. Joseph Blues Sunday afternoon defeated the strong Cherry Blossoms of this city two out of three games in a match-up of the St. Josephs all-stars. They dropped the first game, 738 to 826, but came back in the second and third in which the Cherry Blossoms went into a deep slump. C. Doerfler of the winning team rolled 518 for high score of the evening with his teammate, A. Boehme, close on his heels with a 506 total. F. Johnston led the Cherry Blossoms with 475.

The scores:

FORMER LAWRENCE HARRIER STARS ON WISCONSIN SQUAD

Kubly Considered as Mainstay in Cross Country Race With Notre Dame

Madison—The University of Chicago cross country team will be the guests of the Wisconsin cross country team at the Wisconsin-Notre Dame football game here Saturday afternoon.

The Maroon runners will meet the Badgers Saturday morning in their annual cross country run and one of the greatest races in years is anticipated. With two conference winners of last year, Chicago will send an unusually strong team to Madison Saturday in an effort to stop the Badgers who have already defeated Marquette, Minnesota and Michigan handily this fall.

Kubly, a sophomore, finished first in the race at Michigan Oct. 25 in 21:55 followed three seconds later by Perry with Captain Piper in fourth place and Borgstesser another veteran in seventh place.

Petaja was counted upon for a place as running a great race well up among the leaders, when a farmer in an automobile, drove out on the course from a side road struck Petaja and knocked him into the ditch. He was carried back to the city in the automobile and for a time it was feared that he would not be able to run again this year. He has recovered rapidly, however, and will enter the race against Chicago on Saturday.

Although Captain Finley Perry, Bergstesser and Carter are veteran members of the cross country team, Coach Mead Burke has in Kubly, Petaja, Schulte Cohen and Schwenger five sophomores who give promise of keeping Wisconsin up to the fore in the cross country matches in the conference for the next two years. Kubly and Petaja especially are expected to develop into two of the best distance men in the conference.

ONLY 20 people saw the Glants and White Sox play in Dublin. You can't fool the fish, they know a baseball bat is nothing like a brick bat.

There is such a thing as doing too much bragging about your climate.

For instance we note Jess Willard has moved to California.

KICKS HIS WIFE is the name of the left guard on the Haskell Indians' team. At first we thought it was a movie star, too.

We have nothing against the singing seal in vaudeville except that it reminds us too much of the theatrical debut of Babe Ruth.

It is very hard to understand a singing seal but at least the animal does not come back a dozen times for curtain calls.

Well, anyway, if Cozy Dolan hadn't filed that suit nobody would ever have known his first name is Albert.

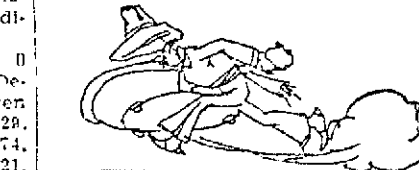

The invention of a toy doll that sings jazz songs is announced. This is undoubtedly the work of some fiend seeking the abolishment of Christmas.

Perhaps after all Mr. Rockne chose well in becoming a football coach. His beauty in no way detracts from his best suited for Gloria Swanson films.

We suppose it's against the A. A. U. rules or something to kill a moose and not have a picture made of yourself holding the animal's toupes.

Mr. Rickard announces a feather tournament for the coming month, and it is to be hoped the customers will not take it too lightly.

It is said Tony Fuente, Mexican heavyweight, has never torn up the sponge. If Tony is like some Mexicans we've seen he doesn't even know what a sponge looks like.

Luis Firpo is in the midst of another strenuous training until 4 in the afternoon he now gets up at 3:30.

Montreal—Billy Dufour, St. Paul, outpointed Leo Kid Wolf, Canadian featherweight champion, in ten rounds.

Youngstown, O.—Jackie Neagle, St. Paul featherweight, won a newspaper decision over Ernie Gooseman, Milwaukee, after 12 rounds.

Ohio State No Longer Soft Snap For Big Ten

Scarlet and Gray Eleven May Not Win Title but Will Make Trouble for Other Contenders

BY BILLY EVANS

Ohio State is back among the elect in "Big Ten" football circles. After being kicked around for a couple of years the Scarlet and Gray athletes are once more in the running.

The tie game with Chicago which State seemed to have won until the last 30 seconds of play definitely established Coach Jack Wile's eleven as a title contender.

Ohio State, after several lean years is no longer soft picking. An "Am" team that defeats State will know that it has been in a real football game.

Perhaps this isn't Ohio State's last chance to win a championship. But Wile's team is going to have a considerable say about the title honors.

EXPERTS ARE DUBIOUS

No doubt there are some experts who will scoff at this viewpoint pointing to the fact that State in four games has scored only 20 points lacks a punch and therefore is not a great team.

True, State hasn't run up a big total but its opponents have scored less. Until Curley, the Chicago substitute, kicked a field goal in the last 30 seconds of play, State had not been scored on this year.

Ohio State is one of the very few major colleges in the country that has not had its goal line crossed.

NATIONALS LACKED PUNCH

Washington in the American league lacked a batting punch but managed to win a pennant and a world championship. It did so by holding the opposition to fewer runs.

That's State's system, fewer points. A great defense that can keep the opposition from scoring doesn't need much of an offense to be a winner.

Chicago, a team with a recognized strong offensive came to Columbus expecting a decisive victory. It was lucky to get a tie.

Incidentally, Ohio State kept Chicago in check minus two of its best players, Karow and Young Karow, star fullback and a great defensive player was in the game only a few minutes. Young just a trifle over one period.

Ohio State showed me a fleet back in Klee Karow, in the last minutes he played a most brilliant game.

JENKINS GREAT TACKLE

This is supposed to be a poor year for ends but in Cunningham and Wilson State is well fortified. I had been told that State lacked a long forward passer. That was the bad dope Cunningham tosses the ball a great distance and is accurate in practice I saw him throw the ball from the center of the field over the goal posts seemingly without any great effort.

However, no player on the Ohio State team impressed me more than tackle Jenkins. Playing his first year he acted like a veteran. He was in every play a mountain on defense.

Unless I am badly mistaken Jenkins bids fair to be one of the greatest tackles ever turned out at State. Opponents looking on Ohio State as easy picking because of past poor performances during 1922 and 1923 had better beware.

Memphis, Tenn.—Bill Clements of Knoxville, Tenn., was awarded a decision over Joe White, Tuscaloosa, Ala., heavyweight after eight rounds.

Zanesville, O.—The Zanesville Boxing commission fined Jack Burke, light heavyweight of Pittsburgh and imposed six months suspension for his failure to report for a match with Joe Lohman of Toledo.

SIX SQUADS POINT FOR BIG TEN TITLE TILTS ON SATURDAY

Illinois and Chicago Considered as Most Likely Candidates in Race

By Associated Press

Chicago—Western conference title aspirations ranged all the way from buoyant hope to black despair this week as six teams began working for Saturday's Big Ten games and four others groomed for non-conference opponents.

Most optimistic of title contenders were Illinois, conqueror of Michigan and Iowa, and Chicago, victor over Purdue and Indiana and tied with Ohio. Chicago has been pointing for the Illinois here Saturday ever since the season began. Secret practice devoted to defensive plays calculated to stop "Red" Grange, Illinois ace, and his mates, Britton, Hall, McIlwain and Captain Bokunick, was the order of Coach Stagg of the Maroons.

While Northwestern and Michigan, both defeated once, had some possibilities of elevating themselves in the title scramble, they were more anxious to extend their victories of last week.

The Purple, back in the list of conference winners, was determined to stay there while Michigan hoped that continued victories might put it back in the title running provided the leaders suffered defeat.

Coach Rockne of Notre Dame had several battered regulars as the result of the Georgia Tech game as he started forming his battle lines for Wisconsin. Studebaker quarterback, will be out of the Badger tilt with injuries. Wisconsin started its second week's training after a lay-off Saturday.

Minnesota, Iowa, and Purdue, virtually out of conference line consideration, planned only perfunctory practice for Ames, Butler, and DePaul respectively, while they kept in mind coming conference contests.

1924 Champs Must Pad Out Weak Places

New York—Although the 1924 season has been over only a few weeks, the champions and pennant contenders in each league are already giving thought to next season.

It is apparent that even the pennant winners in both leagues must do considerable bolstering if they are to again carry off the honors.

Washington's pitching staff is a question. Walter Johnson may not return. It is hardly likely that the veteran southpaw, Zachary and McGriff will go as well next year.

Detroit's worry is in the infield. Shoeless Rigney is still handicapped because of a bad back. Second base, a problem for several years, has only the veteran Frank O'Rourke as a candidate.

Pitching is George Sisler's problem at St. Louis and McGraw's at New York. Incidentally the outfield of the Giants could be improved upon.

Brooklyn, a veteran club, could stand some young blood. Great pitching, in which Vane and Grimes featured, kept Brooklyn in the running.

PIGSKIN PRIMER

If a fumbled or kicked ball strikes one of the officials on the field does the ball become dead or is it still considered in play?

No consideration is given the striking of an official with a fumbled or kicked ball. The ball is in play precisely as though it had not touched him.

What are some of the reasons for which time is taken out during the progress of a football game?

Time is taken out after an incomplete forward pass, after a fair catch has been made, after a touch down, safety or a touchback, during the enforcement of all penalties, when the ball goes out of bounds, or when the referee suspends play for any reason.

In what manner must a team try for the point after touchdown?

Either by kicking a field goal from a drop-kick or from placement, or by carrying the ball across the opponent's goal-line either by rushing or a forward pass.

New Orleans, La.—Kid Carlin, Jeanerette, La., bantamweight, won a decision over Harry Gordon, New York, in 15 rounds.

Lawrence Squad Gets Set To Meet Hamline At Homecoming, Nov. 15

Blues Avoid Repetition of Mistake Made Before Ripon Game and Take Advantage of Open Date

Although Lawrence will be idle on the grid Saturday the squads are not letting up in their daily drill and Monday afternoon turned out full strength for the first day of their preparation for the Hamline game which will feature the homecoming here on Nov. 15. The Lawrentians came through the Carroll game without injury which is considerably more than can be said of the Waukesha schoolers, and with the exception of Cooke and Oltson who played their last games against Carroll, Mark Catlin is using practically the same lineup which started in the Carroll game.

Captain Jake Stoll went through the Carroll contest in fine shape despite his injured knee, playing his usual steady game, and aside from a lot of fumbling every man made a good showing. Passing and punting were extremely difficult Saturday because of a high wind, which accounts for the fact that neither squad was able to accomplish much in either phase.

The Blues do not intend to repeat their mistake of the Ripon contest, which they considered as good as won before they went into it and then played a 7 to 7 tie after making a wonderful showing against Iowa. The situation two weeks from now is much the same. Carroll was considered the chief title claimant of the Little Five conference and went down to defeat, while Hamline is looked upon one of the weakest teams on the Lawrence schedule. Despite this fact Catlin is drilling his men just as hard this week as though they were to face another Big Ten squad Saturday and when the Hamlineites come here, they will find the Lawrentians in the best of shape.

SHEBLAK BUILDS LARGE APARTMENT

Former Appleton Man Constructing Splendid Building in California

An elaborate court apartment structure is being erected in West Adams, Calif., for Charles Sheblak, formerly of Appleton, according to a recent newspaper clipping sent to Mrs. N. P. Mills 765 Lawrence-st. Mr. and Mrs. Sheblak let Appleton about ten years ago.

Plans for the apartment have been under way for almost a year, and Mr. Sheblak has visited scores of apartments in Los Angeles and other California cities, assembling the latest and best ideas for structures of this kind.

The building will be of the highest class of construction, two stories throughout, and will contain 16 apartments. The two front units will be joined by Spanish arches, which gives the front the appearance of a building 40 feet wide.

The terraced center court will be 25 feet wide, all artistically landscaped. Sixteen garages will form a triangular plot in which a nursery and children's playground is to be arranged.

A. A. L. KEGLERS WIN FROM OSHKOSH TEAMS

Four Appleton Aid Association for Lutherans bowling teams Sunday journeyed to Oshkosh where two of the invading women's teams won five out of six games from two Trinity Lutheran church teams, and the two men's fives of Appleton defeated their rivals in four out of six games. The Appleton teams in each case won the matches.

Return games are to be rolled on the A. A. L. alleys here in the near future.

Presenting two unhappy football captains, F. L. Henderson of Cornell and E. B. Taylor of the Navy.

Henderson at the head of Cornell, a team that had not been defeated in years, has already suffered two reverses. Williams and Rutgers hold victories over Cornell.

The Navy, with prospects for a big year, has already lost to Marquette and Princeton.

Cornell must defeat Pennsylvania and the Navy trim the Army for the 1924 season to be worth while for Henderson and Taylor.

PACKERS DEFEAT RACINE LEGION

Buck's Punting Features Game Won by Tillie Voss' Sensational Play

Green Bay—A sensational catch of a forward pass by Tillie Voss, after he had been knocked to the ground behind the Racine goal line, enabled the Green Bay Packers to defeat the local Legion eleven, 6 to 3, here Sunday in a thrilling game before a huge crowd.

The touchdown came on the opening play in the fourth quarter. Capt. Lambeau, standing on the 45 yard line, zipped the pigskin to Voss, who collided with Glaver. Tillie went down on his knees, but lunged forward and grabbed the oval, just inches off the ground. Buck missed the goal.

A fumble during the first scrimmage of the game gave Racine the ball on the Packers' 25-yard line and Gillo lost little time in kicking a field goal.

"Cub" Buck's splendid punting featured the averaged 60 yards.

IOWA-WISCONSIN GAME WILL DRAW HUGE GATE

Madison—There is little chance that much space at Camp Randall will go vacant at the Iowa-Wisconsin homecoming game here Nov. 15, according to Paul Hunter, director of ticket sales. A total of 31,320 tickets had been requested Saturday for the game.

Not until Nov. 16 will open sales begin when the remaining three or four thousand tickets will be available. A block of 4,000 tickets for the Chicago-Wisconsin game at Chicago, went on sale Monday and students were taking them fast.

Draws Praise From Rockne

HARRY STUHDREHER

Notre Dame has had some great quarterbacks, but Coach Knute Rockne rates his present pilot, Harry Stuhldreher, as one of the greatest. Stuhldreher is brainy, uses great judgment in his selection of plays, and stays at carrying the ball in addition to his other duties.

"The fact that he is just one of four great backs who Stuhldreher has much of the glory that would otherwise be his," explains Rockne.

U. S. HOLDS EXAMS FOR CLERICAL POSITIONS

A United States civil service examination for filling positions in the general clerical service was held at the Appleton postoffice on Saturday under the auspices of the local civil service board.

At the same time the board announced the date for another examination for diggers to be held here on Dec. 13. Vacancies exist in the United States veterans hospital at Waukegan at $1,500 a year and in the subdistrict office of the United States veterans hospital at Detroit at $2,025 a year. There also are vacancies in Wisconsin, Michigan and Illinois requiring similar qualifications at higher or lower salaries.

PRINCETON MEETS HARVARD IN EAST

Crimson Is Conceded Edge Over Tiger in First of Big Three Games

By Associated Press
New York—Princeton and Harvard begin the Big Three series at Cambridge Saturday in the principal contest of a week end which finds most important eleven's engaging minor opponents.

LaFayette is favored to reduce Rutgers from the undefeated ranks in their clash at New Brunswick. Leigh another unbeaten team, will meet a strong eleven in Holy Cross at Worcester. Carnegie and Penn State promise a stubborn battle at State College, Pa., and West Virginia and Colgate will be well matched at Morgantown. Roston college will face Marquette, winner over the Navy.

Yale will prepare for its battles against Princeton and Harvard by taking on Maryland. West Virginia Wesleyan will go to Syracuse and Brown will entertain the Haskell Indians.

Pittsburgh will play Geneva. Harvard is accorded an early edge over Princeton in the first brush of the aristocratic triange. Some observers predict the Crimson will achieve a slow awakening in time to beat both Tiger and Bulldog.

When You Catch Cold Rub on Musterole

Musterole is easy to apply and it gets in its good work right away. Often it prevents a cold from turning into "flu" or pneumonia. Just apply Musterole with the fingers. It does all the good work of grandmother's mustard plaster without the blister.

Musterole is a clean, white ointment, made of oil of mustard and other home supplies. It is recommended by many doctors and nurses. Try Musterole for sore throat, cold on the chest, rheumatism, lumbago, pleurisy, stiff neck, bronchitis, asthma, neuralgia, congestion, pains and aches of the back and joints, sprains, sore muscles, bruises, chilblains, frosted feet—colds of all sorts.

To Mothers: Musterole is also made in milder form for babies and small children. Ask for Children's Musterole. 35c and 65c jars and tubes; hospital size, $3.00.

Appleton Boys Meet In Badger-Notre Dame Tilt

Scores of Appleton football fans have ordered tickets for the Notre Dame Wisconsin game Saturday, in which two former Appleton high school grid stars probably will face each other on the opposing squads. Bob Bonini, who starred at center on the Appleton squad two years ago and probably was the greatest center the Orange ever had, has been tried at tackle and guard on the Wisconsin eleven and may be sent into the game Saturday. John Roach, a junior at Notre Dame, was one of the fastest backfield men the Orange ever had three years ago, and Saturday made one of the longest runs in the Notre Dame Georgia Tech contest, and also scored a touchdown, playing at left half on the Notre Dame lineup. Roach ran around end for 45 yards to make his touchdown, and also helped complete a pass which netted the Irishmen a big gain.

Bonini has had but few chances to get into the game this season, but acquitted himself well whenever he was sent in and probably will have an opportunity to play Saturday. He is one of the heaviest men on the Wisconsin squad, but fast in spite of his weight.

Roach is a first string substitute and is almost certain to be in the midst of the fracas. He was known as one of the best punters and drop kickers ever on the Orange squad and although he has had but little occasion to display his prowess in this phase in recent years his ability makes him a valuable asset on any squad.

125 P-T MEMBERS HEAR HEALTH TALKS

Miss Orbison and Dr. Brooks
Tell Parents How to Protect Children

About 125 persons attended the meeting of the Parent Teachers association of the First ward school Monday evening. Talks were given by Miss Mary Orbison, school nurse, and Dr. E. H. Brooks, while the entertainment numbers included two health plays by pupils of the seventh and eighth grades, vocal solos by Mrs. Marie Boehm and a piano duet by Mrs. Mildred Boettcher and Miss Anna Thomas.

The importance of preventive measures was brought out by Miss Orbison. Children should be taught the need of cleanliness, she emphasized. They should be warned against wearing sweaters indoors as a preventive against colds. Children that sneeze, have sore throats, and show latent symptoms of colds with a tendency to more serious diseases are sent home from school for a day or two until it is well established whether they have contracted a contagious disease. With respect to the milk diet, Miss Orbison advised that a child's appetite for the noon meal, they should be eliminated. It is the undernourished children who are given greatest attention.

An instructive lecture on the structure and functions of the human eye, together with the optical defects and the manner of correcting them, was delivered by Dr. Brooks. He used wall charts, diagrams and photographs to illustrate the talk. Causes of nearsightedness, farsightedness, cross-eye and cataracts and the methods of remedying these defects were explained.

A straw vote taken among those present gave Colledge 74 votes, LaFollette 10, Davis 1, and Andy Gump 1.

G. O. P. MADE FEWEST BLUNDERS, IS CLAIM

more after election than he has before.

The mistakes of the LaFollette management were many. Having accepted at Cleveland the support of several radical groups, the Wisconsin senator did not argue for radicalism in a concrete and aggressive sense. Further feeling the conservative mood of the country or yielding to his own impulses, Senator LaFollette took the defensive on the supreme court issue and public ownership. His radical friends would have been better pleased and more enthused had he insisted that the issue was not a change in the supreme court or the constitution but whether a 4 to 3 decision should be allowed to override the wishes of congress. Should one man pass upon the constitutionality of laws made by two houses of congress? Had he pursued this tack, the radicals—and there have been murmurs heard throughout the length and breadth of the land—would have fared better. As for the public ownership of railroads, a promise to study the question was interpreted by ardent advocates of that proposal as a weakening. They would have preferred that he argue the merits of the question in the hope of winning converts.

SERIES OF MISTAKES

As for the Democratic campaign, it has been a series of mistakes from the very day the Madison Square Garden convention began. Defeat was inevitable because John W. Davis could not reconcile the two opposing wings of Democracy. It looked last July as if he might. But the Democratic convention did not come to his rescue. The McAdoo movement was a concrete crystallization of western sentiment plus southern support. The south votes Democratic anyway but the west could make little headway with a New York lawyer as a candidate no matter how progressive were his words. He had never before been identified with western ideas of progressivism or radicalism.

His very praise which issued from the metropolitan press of the east served to injure the Davis candidacy in the west. McAdoo might not have won eastern states but he would have carried a goodly number of western states and there wouldn't have been a LaFollette movement because of the railroad brotherhoods' malapropos of LaFollette, financially and otherwise, would have supported McAdoo.

In the east the failure of the Democrats to nominate Al Smith caused equal damage. The Democrats took it to heart and only the necessity of keeping the party together to win state and congressional contests made them work for Davis. Funds were difficult to collect because of the cleavage in the party. The eastern Democrats did not like the selection of Charles W. Bryan as vice president. The western Democrats thought well enough of Bryan but did not feel the necessary warmth for Davis.

The most effective piece of strategy of the whole campaign was the way the Republicans drove home the idea that the issue was Colledge or LaFollette and what they represented.

The fear of getting the election into the hands of representatives of the decision, the old Bryan bugbear, and the argument that business would be disturbed by a change of administration were worked so well that the success of the campaign can be attributed to the use made thereof by the Republican management by radio, stump-speaking, editorials and propaganda generally.

THEY QUARREL BY TURNS

George Kapoun and his wife of Chicago can talk back to each other on three separate days of the week. But on Sunday they must not quarrel, Judge Harry Lewis has decreed. It is the first of a "take-your-turn-at-it" experiment which Judge Lewis is trying out to keep married couples out of the divorce courts. The Kapouns were on the verge of separating until this plan was suggested.

WOMAN DEAD IN BED BEARS ASSAULT MARKS

No valuables had been removed from the house, and the furniture of the rooms was left in order. Police at first placed little weight on two cuts on the woman's brow, one slightly above the bridge of her nose and another of about one inch long across the bridge. Her glasses were lying beside her on the bed. There were no other evidences that might be construed as marks of violence. She was not choked and was not beaten. There was no sign of a struggle.

SHOCK CAUSED END

Even the first medical examination revealed little to prove conclusively that an assault had been committed. This opinion was later changed to a belief that the woman had been attacked and that death was the result of nervous shock.

If criminal assault is proved and the guilty person is found, the woman's death may subject the criminal to a charge of murder perhaps in the first degree according to John A. Lonsdorf, district attorney.

Miss Garvey was said to be of a strong constitution and quite able physically of defending herself. An instance was cited in which she a year and a half ago carried a sick man upstairs to the second floor.

The most suspicious element of the affair, according to Chief Prim, is the fact that Miss Garvey was not tall enough to turn off the lights on the chandelier. That she had not lain down while it was light is apparent from the fact that she had soaked clothes for the Monday washing. A newspaper is beside a chair in the living room as if it had been dropped suddenly. Miss Garvey had never complained of heart disease so hence could not be attributed to that cause.

Miss Garvey lived alone. She is without close relatives, but has several cousins, one of whom is Michael Garvey, former Appleton chief of police.

The funeral will be held at 8:30 Thursday morning from St. Mary's church. Interment will take place in St. Mary cemetery. She was a member of the Third Order of St. Francis.

London Educator Tells Council
Way Man Puts on Hat Is Indication

London—The latest explorations into the realm of psychology show that a man's character is revealed by the way he puts on his hat, or so at least Dr. C. W. Kimmings, chief education officer, has been telling the London County Council.

"If I wear my hat well over my forehead it gives me a solemn, thoughtful appearance," Dr. Kimmings said. "When I push it back beyond the usual position the whole world knows me as a happy-go-lucky man. Tilted on the right side I am something but a rowdy, but the minute I let it slide over to the left I lose my social status completely, for I become a mental deficient."

London hatters confirm the truth of what Dr. Kimmings says, and declare they know all this long ago.

"I always examine my customers' hats as they come into the shop," said one hatter. "Before they have given their order I have formed my conclusions with regard to the kind of hat they need."

"A man with a fashionably shaped bowler tilted forward over his right eye will want an expensive but fashionable hat. The man who wears his lid dead straight will in all probability demand a serviceable hat, and will possibly be particular over the price."

"Men who wear their hats tilted to the left are the rarest type. They usually want something out of the common. But there is a chance that one may misjudge this last type, they may merely be left-handed."

Mrs. Harding is better, report

By Associated Press
Merion, O.—Mrs. Florence Kling Harding, widow of President Harding, has been seriously ill for the last two weeks, was better Tuesday, Dr. Carl W. Sawyer, her physician, said in a statement issued Tuesday morning. His statement follows:

"The condition of Mrs. Warren C. Harding widow of President Warren C. Harding, was somewhat better Tuesday morning. She ate a hearty breakfast and had a fairly good night's sleep. She was restless until about 1 a. m. and then went to sleep and had no waking from three to five hours' sleep."

GUARDSMEN MAINTAIN QUIET IN LAS VEGAS

By Associated Press
Albuquerque, N. M.—San Miguel which was placed under martial law Monday night by governor J. F. Hinkle as the result of a political controversy at Las Vegas, the county seat, remained quiet as national guardsmen held their places in their booths early Tuesday, according to a telephone message received here.

The Las Vegas Optic was prohibited from issuing an extra edition announcing the proclamation of martial law according to the telephone message, which was directed to the Albuquerque Herald.

FRENCH PARLIAMENT FIGHTS HIGH PRICES

By Associated Press
Paris—The French parliament convened Tuesday and the chamber of deputies began immediately the task of discussing routine matters so as to be able to begin discussion on the budget.

The government's first act was to introduce a bill against speculation in foods and other necessary commodities, which would revive a number of war time measures in the light of the increasing cost of living.

FARM AND CITY TIED TOGETHER AT BIG MEETING

Nearly 600 Businessmen of City and Farm Attend Annual Community Dinner

Five hundred seventy-five businessmen of the farm and city, with their ladies were jammed into Eagle hall and in the convay hotel for their second annual get-together dinner and meeting Monday night, and after a period of get-acquainted community singing, were entertained by a series of humorous readings by Dr. John Seamon Barnes of Minneapolis, and a stirring address by Burt Williams of Milwaukee. It was the largest gathering of farm and city folk ever held in Appleton and probably one of the largest in the midwest. Both Mr. Seamon and Mr. Williams said they were inspired by the community spirit manifested by the gathering and declared that Appleton and Outagamie are leaders in a growing movement to bring city and farm together for their mutual good.

The attendance was so large that all the people could not be taken care of in Eagle hall and about 75 were taken to the Conway hotel for dinner, returning to Eagle hall for the program. The tables in Eagle hall were so close together that waitresses could not pass between them and the food-laden plates were passed by diners from one end of the table to the other.

PEPPY SINGING
Dr. Earl Baker of Lawrence conducted a series of songs, and the crowd in good humor by leading several rollicking songs. He did his work so well that the crowd insisted on singing "Far Away" long after that number had passed.

Lee C. Rasey presided as chairman and George R. Schaefer, well known farmer, was toastmaster. Short talks were given by Mayor John Goodman, J. J. Williams, chairman of the county board, Mrs. S. C. Shannon, president of Appleton Women's club, Miss Lucy Nelson (February) general director of the club, and Adam C. Remley, president of the chamber of commerce.

Mr. Schaefer said he regretted that the farm-city meetings, which were an enjoyable part of summer life last year, were omitted this year and expressed hope that they will be resumed in the near future. He said the farmers welcomed the opportunity to meet with their city cousins.

Mr. Rasey's appearance on the program was a homecoming for him and he was greeted like a long lost friend. His program of readings had everybody in the crowd laughing and clamoring for more.

NEEDS SPIRIT
"Wisconsin needs more of the spirit of get-togetherness, of cooperation for a greater community that is manifested here tonight," Mr. Williams said in his address in which he lauded Wisconsin as a great state and denounced its calumniators. "There has been too much hostility, too much disagreement between dwellers in the city and in the country. The main things like this will make the farm dwellers realize that his prosperity depends upon the prosperity of the city and the city dweller understand that the farmer must prosper if he is to succeed."

Mr. Williams said that if California had the things to boast about that Wisconsin has its story would be placarded in every magazine in the country. California, he said, boasted that 234,000 tourist cars were in the state in 1923. Wisconsin, Mr. Williams said, entertained at least 800,000 tourist cars this last year and tourists spent at least $75,000,000 in the state.

LAUGH THIS OFF!
"Wisconsin's cheese in 1923 was worth more than all the gold and half of the silver mined in the United States last year. Wisconsin's butter and cheese in 1923 was of greater value than all the anthracite coal mined in the whole country in 1921 and 1922. The canned milk produced in Wisconsin last year was worth more than all the copper mined in Michigan, which produces more copper than any state in the union."

Mr. Williams pointed to the results of cooperation between farm and city businessmen at Sturgeon Bay and in the tobacco district of southern Wisconsin to show how city and country had benefited. Before the cherry orchardists of the Sturgeon Bay effected their cooperation, the cherry growers, attempting to market their crops as independents, lost heavily because of low prices and inability to get on the market. But by cooperating there are no losses. Ten years ago, Mr. Williams said, the cherry growers shipped five carloads of cherries. This year 1,200 carloads were shipped from the region.

"Meetings such as these teach the farmer and the businessman that their interests are identical, that each must prosper if the other is to succeed," Mr. Williams said.

RETURNS TO HOSPITAL
Walter R. Schaefer, son of Otto W. Schaefer, 897 Morrison-st., returned to St. Elizabeth hospital at Menominee, Mich., after attending the celebration given by the Milwaukee Journal at Milwaukee. Mr. Schaefer, who is the circulation manager for the Journal in the upper peninsula, has been a patient at the hospital for the last three months as the result of an automobile accident and will be confined there for several weeks more. The program given by the Journal was to celebrate the occupation of its new building recently completed.

Shed Burns
A small wooden building built over a pile of lumber from the boiler house to the smokestack of the Outagamie Paper Co. mill at Kaukauna caught fire from the pipe at 8:15 Tuesday morning. The fire department was called immediately and the blaze was extinguished before much damage was done.

Supreme Court Calm Isn't Ruffled By Hot Attacks

HARRY R. HUNT

Washington — Calm, deliberate, sedately judicial, the supreme Court of these United States of America pursues the even tenor of its way, seemingly unaware of the dire things that less sober-minded folks say is likely to happen to it should the Progressive-Independent presidential ticket go "over the top" on election day.

By comparison with the calm that enshrouds the Supreme Court, the alleged calm about the White House has become a tumultuous riot.

Both the executive and legislative branches of the government and the various candidates therefore have been all worked up over what La Follette has suggested he would like to have done to the judicial branch. Party spellbinders and editorial writers have elaborated at length on the direful threat in the La Follette program.

As the branch of the government directly interested, it occurred to me the court itself might reflect similar interest. If the danger had reached as bad a pass as the campaign oratory seemed to indicate, probably the honorable judges were already looking around for other employment. At least they must show traces of the uncertainty and strain.

But a visit to the court reveals nary a trace of tension or anxiety. For all Chief Justice Taft and his eight associate justices show of worry or distress the millenium might already have arrived.

The suggestion that a lifetime job at $15,000 a year would wipe the worry off most faces may be disregarded as altogether irrelevant. The judges aren't placid from merely personal reasons. Their placidity lies deeper than that. It lies in a fundamental belief that whatever may happen to president and congress the nation is still safe; the court still sits and the Constitution still rules!

It was nearly a coincidence, of course, but interesting none the less, that the Supreme Court convened for its fall term on the very day Bob La Follette left town for his presidential campaign tour.

And the supplication of Frank K. Green, marshal of the court, as the justices in the sepulchral black robes filed into the room—"God save the United States and this Honorable Court"—had no special significance. It was merely a part of the formal admonition, given as the court convenes each day, warning "all persons having business before the court to draw near and give their attention."

As one studies the court, however, the conviction grows that changes in it before long are inevitable.

These will not be changes in procedure or in the scope of its authority but in its personnel.

Two of its members are now on the shady side of eighty. That they will much longer retain their seats is altogether unlikely.

These octogenarian members are Justice Oliver Wendell Holmes, son of "The Autocrat of the Breakfast Table," and Justice Joseph McKenna. Holmes will be 84 in March; McKenna was 81 in August.

Although the younger in years, McKenna is likely to quit the bench first. Mrs. McKenna died early in October and it is expected her death may hasten his withdrawal. He is a little, frail-looking man, white-bearded and now plainly burdened by his years. He is the oldest justice in point of service, too, having taken his seat in January, 1898, on appointment by President McKinley.

Holmes, appointed by Roosevelt in 1902, retains astonishing vigor despite his years. More than six feet tall, erect, emphatic in speech and manner, he's still packing middle-age punch and pep.

brought out all the genius of both Nazimova and Sills. He has made his characters live as in real life and has made their lives seem real, which after all is the supreme test of the director.

Playing with Nazimova and Sills is an all-star cast including Claude Gillingwater, Vivien Oakland, Courtney Foote, Harold Goodwin, Rosa Gore, John T. Murray and Tom Kennedy.

Constance Talmadge, TOM MOORE and WALTER HIERES in "THE LESSON"

Constance Talmadge comes to the New Bijou Theatre Wednesday Thursday in the role of Helen Drayton, the young girl wife of "The Lesson," which is a screen version of the well known tales of married life by Virginia Terhune Van de Water.

The Helen Drayton of the Lesson reveals Constance Talmadge in one of the most pleasing and authentic characterizations of her entire career, since it is just the type of American girl to which this captivating screen star naturally belongs. The story concerns a young girl in a small town, who marries a city man, principally because she is tired of seeing the same old faces and dancing with the same old boys year after year. Her marriage is not a happy one, but she discovers she has talents which enable her to make her way in the world independently, and eventually she finds happines as well. The supporting cast has been selected with great care, and includes the popular Tom Moore as leading man, Walter Hieres Herbert Heyes, Joseph Smiley, Lilian Rambeau, Dorothy Green, Christy Walker and others.

RECOMMENDED BY HER DOCTOR

Found Strength by Taking
Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound

Kankakee, Illinois.—"My mother-in-law always took your medicine for weakness, and then in the Change of Life it did her so much good that she induced me to take it for a weakness I had for a year and a half. It has strengthened me and now I have a nice baby boy. I do all my own housework now, and I recommend Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound whenever I have the opportunity. I am taking it again for weakness, as my family doctor has recommended it for this purpose."

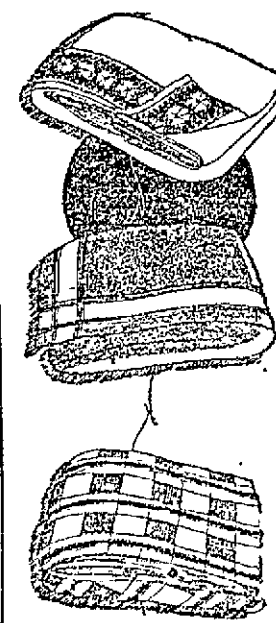

Mrs. HARRY COULOX, 584 North Harrison Ave., Kankakee, Illinois.

Real Evidence of Merit
For the relief of female weakness, pains and backache, nervousness and irregularities, with other troubles common to women, Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound is a dependable medicine.

Its worth is thoroughly established by such letters as the above. There are women everywhere, who, having received benefit, gladly tell other women about it. For sale by druggists everywhere.
